CHMIELINSKI AND McNARY FACE COURT FOR CONTEMPT

SCOTT AGAINST HOYT IN THIRD BATTLE

Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 6.—Jack Scott was sent against Waite Hoyt as the Giants and Yankees battled in the third game of the world's series today.

Another capacity crowd was on hand for the tussle. Apparently the near riot following the calling of yesterday's game only added to the interest of the fans.

LEXINGTON FIREMEN RESCUE LOFTY CAT

When a soft-hearted resident of Eustis street, Lexington, heard the pleading cries of a small gray cat some fifty feet up in a huge oak tree, he sent an urgent call to the police department. The police dropped everything to notify the fire department, which in turn dispatched the ladder apparatus and a squad of firemen to the scene. The actual rescue was accomplished by Lieutenant John J. Garrity. Pussy, safely eased to earth, thanked with purrs. She was then taken to the home of Captain Selon A. Cook, East Lexington, where she awaits the owner.

BRITAIN DEFIED BY TURKS

London Stunned by Collapse of Peace Parleys and Ismet Pasha's "Bombshell"

London, Oct. 6.—Fears of war in Asia Minor again blazed forth today in the wake of the collapse of the Turco-Allied armistice conference at Mudania.

It was admited by Downing Street officials that the British fear an offensive by the Turks against the British at Chanak, on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles.

The British declare that Henri Franklin Bouillon, Franco-British-Italian pacification emissary, was responsible for the breakdown of the Mudania conference because he had influenced the Turks to make demands that were impossible.

The public was stunned by the sudden collapse of the negotiation, as hopes had been raised that the parley was on the point of signing an agreement.

Following the breakdown at Mudania, General Sir Charles Harington, British commander in Turkey, telegraphed to the Cabinet that "the Turks were in a most truculent frame of mind."

General Harington reported the

HELD ON TAMPERING WITH JURY CHARGE MADE BY ALLEN

Henry H. Chmielinski, president of the closed Hanover Trust Company, and William S. McNary, treasurer, were arraigned today before Judge Sisk in the Superior Court, charged with contempt of court.

The charges arose out of alleged tampering with Attorney-General J. Weston Allen's extraordinary Grand Jury.

Mr. Chmielinski was accompanied to court by his attorney, Ernest E. Rowe, and Attorney John M. Corcoran accompanied McNary. No pleas were entered. The men were released in bail of $2,000 each, furnished by a Jane Martin, a sister-in-law of Mr. McNary, and by Mae E. Breslin.

Charles Pizzi, former director of the Hanover, appeared and was released in bail of $2,000. No date was set for a hearing. The charge against Mr. Pizzi is that he talked to witnesses in the Hanover case during the sittings of the special grand jury.

CHMIELINSKI AND McNARY FACE THE COURT FOR CONTEMPT

CHARGED WITH LETTER.

Chmielinski is charged by Mr. Allen with writing on September 29, with "wrongful intent to interfere with the proper administration of justice and to prejudice the minds of the jury," the following letter to Thomas W. Summers, foreman of the Special Grand Jury.

"I understand that procedings have been taken up by Attorney-General Allen's office in reference to the affairs of the Hanover Trust Company. As president of that institution I was in close touch with its affairs and my information on that subject should be of esential value.

"Twice before I have been given the privilege of appearing before Grand Jury investigations of the Hanover Trust Company—once in 1920 and again in 1922—and in both cases no bills were returned.

"I ask you, gentlemen, the same privilege—to appear before you and explain fully that the bank was solvent when closed. I understand you are to grant this privilege to William S. McNary and I hope you will treat me with equal fairness."

Mr. McNary was charged, with equal intent as mentioned above, with writing this letter to Summers:

"The affairs of the Hanover Trust Company are under investigation by your body and my official actions as an active officer—treasurer from October, 1919, to August, 1920—and as a director before that, are to receive consideration.

"I most respectfully request that I be allowed to appear before your body, as I appeared in the two previous grand jury investigations of the Hanover Trust Company, when no bills were returned. I hereby tender my services as a voluntary witness, waiving all immunity.

"Your duty is to reach a fair and just conclusion without fear or favor of any kind, and my knowledge of these affairs will be of great aid and benefit to you in arriving at such a result.

"You have the right to call in any witness you please. I hope as a matter of fairness and justice that I be so called. I further suggest that you read and acquaint yourself with the proceedings of the previous grand jury investigations."

It is further charged by Attorney-General Allen that Mr. McNary mailed to each member of the Grand Jury a clipping cut from a Boston newspaper, in which the heading read, "Should Mr. Allen Resign?" Other clippings were sent, it is charged, which tended to prejudice the minds of the jurors.

Mr. McNary is further charged with persuading and aiding Walter S. Conway of New York to write to the jurors, and persuading Charles Pizzi to question witnesses in the Courthouse during the sittings of the Grand Jury.

Mr. Allen made charges to the effect that members of his special grand jury, hearing evidence against the Hanover Trust, the Prudential Trust and the H. V. Greene Company and associated enterprises, had been tampered with.

The jury, formed under a special act of the Legislature at the request of the Attorney-General, was at his request dismissed after five weeks' service. He stated that as a result of being unduly influenced by persons liable to indictment, the jurors could no longer hear the cases without prejudice.

Specifically Attorney-General Allen charged that certain officials of the closed trust companies, and others, talked with jurors in the courtroom and outside, wrote letters to the jurors and talked with witnesses before and after they testified.

During the sittings of the special Grand Jury Mr. Allen caused the arrest of Walter G. Conway of Millis, Mass., a witness in the Hanover case. Conway was charged with contempt of court and released in bail of $5,000.

The contempt charged against Conway is the alleged sending, on September 21, of a letter addressed to the foreman of the special Grand Jury. In the letter Conway is alleged to have written:

"It is being talked around and heard by more than one person that I, Walter G. Conway, Henry M. Chmielinski and William S. McNary would be indicted in Massachusetts on some flimsy charge made by Assistant Attorney General Albert Hurwitz and that he would prevent us from appearing before the grand jury to make any statement or explanation as a reprisal or punishment for testifying against Siff brothers in the cases of the Hanover Trust Company against Siff brothers."

ANONYMOUS LETTERS.

According to Conway, one of the Siff brothers told him that if Conway, Chmielinski and McNary would not testify the Grand Jury would take no action against them.

The foreman of the jury also turned over to Mr. Allen anonymous letters attacking the Attorney General. He also exhibited a registered letter written to him by Mr. McNary.

Charles Pizzi, according to the records, was formerly a director of the Hanover Trust Company, elected the same day that Charles Ponzi became a director.

Whole World Is With Us, Says Kemal Pasha

Angora, Oct. 6 (By the Associated Press).—Mustapha Kemal Pasha has sent the following message to the people of Constantinople:

"I offer greetings to my friends in Constantinople and hope soon to meet them personally. Peace will be concluded with the realizations of our national aspirations.

"The whole world is now with us. Humanity applauds us. The saner spirits even of Great Britain favor our cause, and many who hitherto misguidedly opposed us have seen the truth and changed their sentiment toward us."

$340 ALIMONY UNPAID; JUDGE JAILS DOWNEY

Paying alimony to one's wife and supporting one's child are two vastly different things. One does not substitute for the other, in the eyes of the law. And to break law means trouble.

Therefore Bertram Downey, proprietor of the Valley Inn, North Conway, N. H., was committed to jail today by Judge Fox of the Superior Court. For Bertram had failed to pay $5 a week alimony to his former wife, Mrs. Louise Downey.

"I have been supporting one of my boys since we were divorced and I thought that I was doing all that was necessary," quoted Bertram.

"You did not pay your wife the alimony ordered by this court and I adjudge you guilty of contempt of court; furthermore, I am not listening to any of your excuses," was the "comeback" of Judge Fox.

Bertram was about $340 behind in his alimony bill. He was divorced on January 3, 1919.

GOVENOR DEMANDS LID ON COAL PRICE

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 6.—In an effort to keep coal at $14.50 a ton in New Jersey, Governor Edwards today asked the Pennsylvania Coal Commission to insist on its rule that not more than $8.50 a ton be charged for household coal at the mines. Other executives of Eastern States will follow, it was announced.

"It is a serious situation," declared Governor Edwards, "because some of the independent operators have been asking $14.50 at the mines"

TURKS RENEW WAR THREATS AT PARLEY

Turks were demanding their own terms, feeling their victory over the Greeks gave them the right to speak as "conquerors."

"Bombshell" Thrown by Ismet Pasha

London, Oct. 6 (By the Associated Press).—A new crisis has arisen in the Near Eastern situation, which had seemed on a fair way to settlement.

The armistice conference of allied, Greek and Turkish military leaders at Mundania was adjourned suddenly yesterday after a dramatic passage in which Ismet Pasha, representing the Angora government, demanded that the Turks be allowed to occupy Eastern Thrace as a precedent to any peace conference.

Ismet Pasha told the allied generals that if the Turks could not have Thrace peacefully "we have the means to enforce our determination."

KEMAL'S DECLARATION.

That the Turkish demand had been duly weighed and calculated is evidenced by the almost simultaneous receipt of an Angora dispatch quoting Mustapha Kemal Pasha as declaring before the National assembly: "The evacuation and surrender of Thrace must occur imediately, especially as since the Greek revolution the Moslem subjects are in great danger."

Ismet Pasha's bombshell was followed by another when the French delegates announced they were instructed to support the Turkish demand. This created a definite split with the Turks and French opposed to the British and Italians, the latter holding that evacutation of Thrace by the Greeks and reoccupation by the Turks should follow and not precede the peace conference.

The Mudania conference is not ended, it was officially stated at the conclusion of the British Cabinet meeting today, but it is deadlocked and cannot be resumed before the British and French governments have conferred over the situation.

CURZON ASKED ABOUT U. S.

Before Lord Curzon started for Paris he was asked why he was going.

"To discuss matters with friends, the allies," the foreign secretary replied.

To a question as to what would be the subject of such discussion he responded it would naturally be the Near East.

"But I cannot speak of these difficulties until they are removed," he added.

Asked if the United States was to be drawn in, Lord Curzon said he had no information so far.

Venizelos Plans Return to Athens

Paris, Oct. 6 (By International News Service).—Former Greek Premier Eleutherios Venizelos conferred with Premier Poincare today on Greek aspirations in the Balkans. He said if an agreement was reached he would leave tonight for Athens, ending his exile, which has existed since the return of Constantine to Greece two years ago.

Make Progress Against Minnesota Fires

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 6.—A feeling of optimism prevailed throughout most sections of the Northern Minnesota forest fire zone today. Fire fighting crews were able to make considerable progress. Foggy weather and decreased wind aided them.

Grenadier Guards Reach Constantinople

Constantinople, Oct. 6 (By the Associated Press).—The continued arrival of British naval and military units has had a further reassuring effect on the Christian population of Constantinople. The steamer Empress of India came in yesterday with the Grenadier Guards.

Applications for passports have decreased somewhat and reservations on the Orient express are again obtainable. The steamship companies are still maintaining inflated prices for outward pasage.

The business situation in Constantinople continues depressed. Two large importing houses have failed. Merchants have cancelled outstanding orders with American, British and French firms.

Unemployment has increased. The government is unable to pay the salaries of the civil employes.

French Papers Blame Britain for Crisis

Paris, Oct. 6. (By International News Service).—French newspapers blame England for the deadlock of the Near East negotiations.

"If there is a complete rupture it will prove that some one was interested in shuffling the cards," said the Matin.

"Pertinax," writing in the Echo de Paris, said: "Despite British censorship it is clear that British withdrawal from Chanak is the real bone of contention."

"MISS MANCHESTER" IS NOT FOR STARDOM

MISS AMELIA VACHON

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 6.—The lure of the movie profession has lost its glitter for Miss Amelia Vachon, also known as "Miss Manchester." Back home once again, after a trip to the Middle West, where she expected to enter the realms of the movie stars, "Miss Manchester" is content to stay.

With the enthusiasm of youth, being but twenty, Miss Vachon left Manchester several weeks ago, en route for movieland in California. She went with friends who were to introduce her into the new profession. But illness overtook her in Chicago and the westward voyage halted.

Attempts to induce her to enter musical comedy failed. She went to a sister's home in Cincinnati where she stayed until her health returned.

BLACK EYE ALL THE TIME, WIFE TELLS JUDGE

Mrs. Nathan Teague of Charlestown, before Judge Bell in Suffolk Divorce Court today, said that during the six years of her married life she has had practically a continuous black eye.

This was not due to nature, she explained, but to Nate. He loved to blacken her eye, she said. As soon as the discoloration would disappear he would black it again, according to the woe. It got to be chronic. When she expostulated he would vary the routine by slashing her with a penknife or spanking her with a razor strop.

Judge Bell took her suit for divorce under advisement.

Mrs. Anna J. Wilkins of Charlestown had, literally, a three-weeks' marriage to Joseph C. Wilkins. She married Joe when he was in the service, in 1917, she testified, and when the war was over he came home and they began their married life. Joe was not anxious to find work, and when she insisted, three weeks after he came back from the war, he disappeared and hasn't been seen by her since. She wants a divorce. The case was taken under advisement.

Mrs. Pauline Bouve of Beacon street sought a divorce from Thomas C. Bouve, on grounds of desertion. She testified they were married in 1898 and that since then she had only seen her husband at intervals. The case was taken under advisement.

FRENCH OFFICERS KILLED IN EGYPT

Cairo, Oct. 6.—Two French officers were killed during an attack on the automobile of Islim Pasha, Governor of Hauran, in French Syria, as the Governor's party was leaving the capital yesterday, according to a report from reliable sources. Islim Pasha was wounded in the leg and his chauffeur and secretary were injured.

Another King—More Soldiers
A Breathing Spell
Mr. Munsey Sees Red
Woman—The Mender

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1922, by Star Co.

Greece calls for more soldiers and has a new King. They learn slowly there in this generation. The new soldiers are wanted to keep the Turks from taking Thrace, when the Allies say "walk in." But the Allies and Turkey combined will have their way about it, and Thrace, where the mother of Themistocles was born, land whence the Celts marched down to confer their blue eyes upon the Greeks, will be Turkish—until the next shakeup.

Business men are more cheerful, they think a breathing spell is coming. Bankers in New York, 9,000 strong, are deciding what is to be done about money—which is the mainspring of civilized life just now.

"Stocks rise briskly," is the Wall Street heading.

Perhaps more prosperity is coming, although Frank Munsey says he thinks it won't last. We need a regular conservative party. The old parties should unite to fight dangerous radicalism.

Munsey actually thinks our government is too radical.

Just now in New York State the gentlemen of safety vault and ticker have arranged politics in both parties on a "heads I win, tails you lose" plan. What could be more perfect than that, Frank Munsey?

Stocks go up and stocks go down, peace succeeds war. But women are the same. Poor Mrs. Mills, leader of the choir, was found murdered beside the body of the Reverend Mr. Hall, her clergyman. Among his letters is one from the murdered Mrs. Mills saying, "Oh, for the time when I can do your mending."

Her days of mending, and his, are over, and nobody knows who killed them both. Occasionally a man's foolishness causes him to be murdered, but men as a whole cannot be too grateful for woman's strange, persistent impulse to do somebody's mending. They have done it for a hundred thousand years and are not tired of it yet.

Russia seeks some friendly arrangement with France for the benefit of both. France isn't friendly. She would like to get from Russia the thousands of millions that French peasants lent to the Russian Czar.

The Bolsheviki say they will "recognize" that old debt, although they haven't money to pay it.

Perhaps there will be a reconciliation. France, thoroughly tired of her deep war friendship for England, is looking around for some new friends. And England is drifting back to the habit of suspecting and disliking France.

Three French doctors, Micolle, Conner and Conseil, of the Pasteur Institute in Tunis, believe that they have conquered Asiatic cholera, the horrible little comma-shaped bacillus that has killed tens of millions. In their experiments they used their own bodies, risking life, facing death every day. That is courage worth while.

While you praise those three scientific white men, don't forget the black man, an African chief, anxious to save his people from the horrible sleeping sickness. He went to London, submitted himself to sleeping sickness experiments, and died.

They have erected a monument to him, and he deserves it. Think of him sometimes, when you judge the colored race. Not always of Mr. Siki, the prize fighter.

Would Forgive Husband and Rival

TELLS OF APPEAL TO GIRL

"I Still Love Him," Says Mrs. Forgeron, Who Sues for Theft of Love

"If my husband would only come back to me and promise to give up that woman I could forgive him easily, for I still love him."

So declared Mrs. Maude Forgeron of No. 7 Channing street, Newton, today, following the filing of a $10,000 alienation of affections suit against Helen N. Hicks, Watertown school teacher. Mrs. Forgeron charges that Miss Hicks vamped her street car conductor husband and ran away with him in July.

In her suit Mrs. Forgeron declares that Miss Hicks "by gifts of money and other presents and by exercising her blandishments" enticed Forgeron from her and her family of four small children.

Since her husband's disappearance in July Mrs. Forgeron has been in straitened circumstances, she says, and has been forced to live from the earnings of a sister and support her children on help given through a collection taken up among the street carmen with whom her husband was formerly employed.

STORY OF WIFE.

"I have no grudge or ill feeling toward this other woman," declared Mrs. Fergeron. "I have always been taught not to hold any spite for anyone. I cannot hate the woman. I could forgive her, too, if she would only give up my husband to me and my little children."

"I would not have taken this step, only that she broke several promises to me. I heard of my husband's affair with her several years ago. I remonstrated with him. He told me he just knew her from the fact she rode to work in his car.

"I believed him, until many other persons spoke to me of it. Then I went to Miss Hicks. I told her that Mr. Fergeron was a married man with four children. She said she didn't know he was married and so would give him up. My husband scolded me dreadfully for going to her. He was very angry. But his friendship for her continued.

"She used to ride in his car every night and wait for him outside of the carbarns. Then they would go away together. Every one in town seemed to know all about it but me. I believed my husband when he declared they were merely acquaintances.

"He kept me at home all the time. He wouldn't even let me go auto riding with my sister. He didn't want me to have any acquaintances but him. I was content, because I love him and he was kind to me and the children.

"Then Miss Hicks bought an auto. She used to wait outside the barns in the auto for him. Then she bought him a coupe and after riding in street cars they would transfer to the coupe and go away on trips together. Although my husband owned two autos he never even asked me to go for one ride with him.

"A few months ago he disappeared. I got letters from him from different places. He was in Canada, and up around the border there. He sent me money to keep the children until last July. I called on Miss Hicks then.

"She asked me if I would be satisfied and happy if she left Watertown. I told her I would be very much pleased. She left Watertown as she had promised—but she took my husband with her. The last I heard from him he was in Worcester.

"After Miss Hicks disappeared, the money my husband had been sending me stopped coming. My mother and my sister have helped me to get along somehow. The men at the carbarns took up a sort of collection and that helped a lot, but I haven't a dollar to keep the house now. I don't know what I am going to do.

CRIES FOR FATHER.

"And every night my little Rita, who is four years old, cries for her father. She tells me 'If daddy doesn't hurry home I'm going to get tired of waiting for him.' The other children ask me where he is and are becoming more insistent on knowing. But I do not want to tell them.

"I have been too busy trying to care for the children to become melancholy. I know God will look after me and them somehow. But sometimes it's terribly lonesome.

"Yesterday, in particular, I was lonely. It was my birthday. I wanted to be congratulated and petted, but only my mother remembered my birthday. My husband used to remember it with a gift, and we'd have a celebration, until a year ago, when he was so taken up with Miss Hicks that he forgot it."

NEGRO SHOOTS WOMAN, KILLS HIMSELF

Fall River, Oct. 6.—Enraged because she refused to encourage his intentions, William Moss of No. 218 Pleasant street, today shot and probably fatally wounded Mrs. Grace Lucas, at her home, No. 752 Davol street. He then turned the gun on himself and killed himself.

Both are colored. The woman's husband, known as Honey Lucas, is a well known negro athlete. He left his home yesterday to go to the Brockton Fair to participate in the track meet.

According to the police, Moss has been threatening Mrs. Lucas for some time. He visited her apartment today, and the shooting is believed to have occurred when she ordered him from the house.

Mrs. Lucas is in a critical condition at the City Hospital, with a bullet in her neck.

GIRL AUTOMOBILIST PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Miss Edna Graves of No. 1253 Beacon street, Brookline, today pleaded not guilty before Judge Farrell of the Somerville Court on charges, alleging that she knocked down Charles Peterson, twelve, of Carleton street, Somerville, while driving a car, and drove off without ascertaining the extent of his injuries. The boy sustained a slight concussion of the brain, but he is improving. The case was continued to October 17.

GASTON IS BARRED AT B. U.

Only 3 Hours' Notice Given Senatorial Candidate by Dean Albers

Boston University Law School barred Colonel William A. Gaston, Democratic candidate for United States Senator, from its doors and through its head, Dean Albers, cancelled an assembly hall meeting at which Mr. Gaston was to speak.

It likewise barred on the same occasion and with less than three hours' notice, John E. Swift, Democratic candidate for attorney-general, an alumnus of the school.

These facts became known when Mr. Swift, speaking at a Democratic State Committee dinner at the American House declared:

"The sinster forces which are opposed to the Democratic party and Democratic candidates because they stand for liberal principles, receive support sometimes from unbelievable sources.

"As an example of the uphill fight that we who oppose Senator Lodge and the reactionaries and all their works and pomps have to contend with, let me cite this:

"Colonel William A. Gaston, eminent in the legal profession, and myself, a graduate of the school, were barred from speaking before a group of students of Boston University Law School by Dean Homer Albers.

"The Democratic Club of the law school had invited the colonel and myself to address their student club in the assembly hall of the school. That was to have occurred after classes at 4:30 p. m. on Wednesday last.

"Shortly after noon on that day, without even the courtesy of a day's notice, we received notice that Dean Albers had barred our appearance there and that the assembly hall was denied the Democratic Club.

"I serve warning on Dean Albers and of the officials of Boston University that I resent their attitude toward free speech and ask them if Democracy is to thus pay the penalty for its stand against the interests and its championship of liberal principles?

That Colonel Gaston or Mr. Swift were barred for political reasons was denied by Dean Homer Albers in a statement to the Boston American.

"Mr. Gaston and Mr. Swift were not barred because of any political feeling," he declared, "but rather, for reasons of room.

"I did not know that they were to speak until I saw a notice posted on the bulletin board and I then notified the Democratic Club that they must not use the assembly hall.

"We have 769 students this year and even the corridors are crowded.

Dean Albers today made public a letter from Colonel Gaston in reply to one from the dean explaining that the halls at B. U. were too crowded for political meetings.

Colonel Gaston's letter was:

"Thank you very much for your kind favor of October 3rd.

"I should have been very glad to have addressed the law school students had it been desirable. As a matter of fact, I was not conscious of any definite date having been assigned, such as yesterday. It may be, that I was invited orally, or by some letter that never reached me. I certainly never agreed to speak, much as I would like to have done so. I understand perfectly the position of the law school in regard to political matters. I think it is perfectly right."

Says She'll Never Trust Him Again

Mrs. Crocker Jilted by Fiance, Who Remarries Divorced Wife

Marriage license signed trousseau and everything all ready for her wedding, Mrs. Crocker of Cambridge learned that her fiance, Edgar Hawes, had remarried his divorced wife, Mrs. Helen Hawes. She still loves him, she says, but will never trust him again. "Wait!" he cries," "until I get out of this mess."

STANDARD OIL PAYS 200 P. C. DIVIDEND

New York, Oct. 6.—The Standard Oil Company of New York today declared a stock dividend of 200 per cent., increasing its capital from $75,000,000 to $225,000,000 and reducing the par value of the stock from $100 to $25 a share.

Immediately on news of this dividend, Standard Oil of New York jumped over twenty points on the Curb market to a new high of $596 a share.

"Since 1913," the statement issued by the company said: "by appreciation in the value of its properties and by successful and conservative conduct of its business, the assets of the company are now much in excess of par value of its present authorized capital, and therefore, the board deems it advisable to increase its capital from $75,000,000 to $225,000,000, so that capital shall nearly correspond with actual value of its assets."

On September 22 the stock sold at $532 a share, while in January of this year it sold at $341.

NAZZARO FINED AS DRUNKEN AUTOIST

Michael Nazzaro, professional bondsman, whose festive family reunions at his home on Metropolitan avenue, Roslindale, disturbed neighbors until he was brought to court, appeared again in central court today to answer to charges of driving while under the influence of liquor.

He protested his head was as clear as a bell when a traffic officer arrested him, but three policemen told the court if Nazzaro wasn't gloriously drunk, he gave the best imitation of it on record. They also testified to finding liquor in his auto.

Nazzaro was fined $50, plus $5 for drunkenness, and a charge of driving the wrong way down a one-way street was filed.

On Nazzaro's appearance today it became known that on October 10 he plans to celebrate his twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

JUDGE UPHOLDS VICTORY FOR MRS. STILLMAN

By International News Service.

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Approving and confirming the findings and recommendations of Referee Daniel J. Gleason in favor of Mrs. Anne Uquhart Stillman, in the suit for divorce brought against her by James A. Stillman, the banker, Supreme Court Justice Joseph S. Morschauser today handed down his decision. The referee's report also upheld the legitimacy of Guy Stillman, the banker having denied the paternity of the infant.

Justice Morschauser's decision was as follows:

"The learned referee in this case found, decided and reported that the testimony did not justify a finding of adultery against the defendant, Anne U. Stillman, and also that the defence of the plaintiff's adultery was established, and also that the infant defendant, Guy Stillman, was the legitimate child of the plaintiff and the defendant, Anne U. Stillman.

"On this motion I have examined the testimony and the exhibits in this taken and produced before the referee, besides his findings, and report. I have also examined the briefs submitted by respective counsel on this motion.

"The findings, decision and report of the referee are justified by the testimony presented before him, and I believe he properly disposed of the case."

VETERAN SUES MEDFORD WOMAN

William R. Day of Arlington, veteran of the World War, filed suit in the Middlesex Superior Civil Court today, against Mrs. Adelle S. Montgomery of Medford, for $50,000.

Day, according to the claims in the suit, was standing on a sidewalk on Massachusetts avenue, Arlington on September 5, when an auto, driven by Mrs. Montgomery, ran into him. His both legs were badly crushed and it was necessary to amputate the left one.

THEN ASKS THAT SHE WAIT TILL HE'S FREE

Mrs. Crocker of Cambridge, However, Says She Will Never Trust Hawes Again

Has a wife any right to try and win back her husband's love after she has discarded it, if the husband has transferred his affection to another woman?

This is the baffling question that Mrs. Grace Crocker of Essex street, Cambridge, is asking herself. Mrs. Crocker has an unused marriage license made out in her name and Edgar Hawes.

Mrs. Helen Hawes of Walden, Vt., the divorced and re-wed wife of Hawes, has possession of the man. They were married on September 23, and the jilted fiancee just discovered it last night.

Mrs. Crocker told the story of her exploded romance to a Boston American reporter today. This was to have been her wedding day, and her sisters and friends had planned to give her a wedding supper and celebration tonight at the home of the groom, No. 1118 Massachusetts avenue. The near-bride, who is a divorcee and the mother of three children, is broken-hearted and dazed with grief at the turn of events. Mrs. Crocker, who was the head waitress in a Boston hotel, gave up her position a month ago to prepare for the wedding.

STILL LOVES HIM.

"I am humiliated because I have been abandoned by the man I had promised to marry, but I am desolated because I still love him," said the beautiful, statuesque divorcee.

"I cannot help loving him and being sorry for him, even though I know he is unworthy of my love and sympathy. He was weak to let that woman ensnare him again, and he told me last night that he was sorry and that he wanted to have the marriage annulled. He came to see me last night, and tried to make me promise I wouldn't look at another man until he was free again and could marry me. I told him I could never trust him again."

Mrs. Crocker brought her handsome diamond engagement ring, and a photograph of the deserting lover, from under the pillow of her bed. She blushed and quick tears came to her eyes as she looked at the photographed face.

"Ed is only a big boy with an impetuous heart that cannot bear to see suffering. He let his former wife work on his sympathy when he went to visit his parents at Walden, Vt. The sight of his beautiful little ten-year-old daughter was too much for him, I guess," said the jilted fiancee.

PLANNED HONEYMOON.

Mrs. Crocker and Hawes had planned to be married on August 15, and to spend their honeymoon in Canada. The trousseau had been purchased and the prospective bride was all ready to go to her fiance's home in Walden to meet his parents, when Hawes said that his mother was ill and wanted to see him alone first. He declared that he would spend only three days with her, and then return for his bride and that they would go immediately to Canada.

Mrs. Crocker packed his bags and went to the station and kissed him good-by. Then she went to her home and prayed that the time would speed by and that her lover would return for her soon, she says. Days past and no word came.

Nonchalantly one afternoon he came to her house, she says, and told her that he'd "gotten into a

New Schoolhouses for Dorchester and Roxbury

Two new schoolhouses will be built in the Boston school district—one in Roxbury and the other in Dorchester.

Mayor Curley has approved the taking of 12,000 feet of land at Shirley and Dudley streets, Roxbury, for an extension to the Hugh O'Brien Grammar School, and 11,000 feet of land at Blue Hill avenue and Harvard street, Dorchester, for further extensions in the William E. Endicott district.

USES MILLIONS TO DEVELOP SINGERS

New York, Oct. 6.—With a wealth of information obtained from Jean de Reske and other great operatic instructors, which she will put to use by establishing perpetual free scholarships in the hope of developing great American singers, Mrs. William E. Smith arrived from Europe.

Mr. Smith, who accompanied his talented and noted wife, was the son of Mrs. Roxy Smith, from whom he inherited $10,000,000.

Of the money the Smiths said:

"What good are millions if you can't do good with them?"

And to effect some good with the fortune they hope to develop American singers. Speaking of her trip abroad, Mrs. Smith said:

"After spending three months on the continent, I found even art depressed by local conditions.

"I am more firmly convinced than ever that in the youth in America will be found the embryo of great artists and the future leadership of America in art. All it requires is the proper atmosphere to bring it to the surface. My New York conservatory will be a sort of perpetual free scholarship in the hope that the next generation will have the great American artists.

Chance to Get a Job at $5 a Night for Three Nights

Here is a chance to get a job. Three nights' work at $5 per night.

Mayor Curley has approved the recommendations of the election board that they be allowed to appoint fifty two new registration officers to act on the last three nights, prior to and including the last night for registration, October 18.

He has also approved the transfer of money for this purpose and will send to the City Council on Monday next an order providing for the same.

Mayor Curley stated that he believed that the rush of last minute men and women, who wanted to register, should be taken care of—hence the appointment of fifty-two persons, two for each ward in the city, and there are twenty-six of them, would take care of any great final rush.

Steals Butter and Gets Year

Canandaigua, N. Y., Oct. 6.—George Blair of Buffalo was sentenced to one year and two months in the Federal prison at Atlanta on conviction of stealing butter from a freight car.

NEW VACCINE TO HALT DEATH BY PNEUMONIA

New York, Oct. 6.—When vaccine, now being perfected in the Bellevue laboratories, is made available to the public, the death rate for the United States can be lowered by 150,000 annualy.

This announcement was made by Dr. Russell L. Cecil, in charge of research work on pneumonia and other respiratory diseases for the United States Public Health Service.

The work done in the laboratories covers a year's time and includes tests made on monkeys. The only problems remaining to be solved vaccine, and methods for manufacturing it cheaply enough to be distributed in large quantities. When these details have been worked out pneumonia epidemics will no longer menace.

Bachelors to Arms! Patriot Dames Open War

Bachelors should be taxed yearly ten dollars each.

No bachelor should be allowed to hold office in the State or city and draw a salary of over $1,000, if over twenty-five years of age.

He should be compelled to adopt one orphan out of public institutions and provide for its future education.

These were some of the exactions demanded of bachelorhood at the monthly meeting of the Patriot Dames, on Boylston street.

Mrs. Susan E. Stevens, president, brought the matter up and urged that every member use her influence to break up the monopoly of bachelor existence.

'WETS' TO BAR PAID ORATORS IN DEBATES

Following acceptance by the Anti-Saloon League of the challenge to a series of debates on the referendum on the proposed State prohibition enforcement act, issued by the Constitutional Liberty League, F. R. Bangs, secretary of the latter organization, pointed out that the Anti-Saloon League had failed to state whether or not it would employ paid orators in the debates.

Mr. Bangs pointed this out in a letter to Arthur J. Davis, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, saying that the Constitutional Liberty League will use unpaid speakers, and requesting that the other organization do the same, or permit the chairman to announce that their speakers are hired for the occasion.

JAPS CHARGE U. S. MAN TOOK PHOTO OF FORT

Tokio, Oct. 6 (By the Associated Press).—Richard M. Andrews, who was arrested following search of his residence by the police, is suspected of having taken photographs of the fortification of Yokosuka. Cameras and photographs were seized.

Andrews, who is one of the prominent American residents of Japan, was charged first with operating a motorboat without a license. He was later taken to court, where he was subjected to a secret examination.

He finally was charged with three violations of the navigation laws and entering fortified areas without a permit. He explained he personally had no knowledge of the navigation laws and expected the licensed captain of his motorboat to be thoroughly acquainted with them.

RELEASED ON BOND.

The Japanese judge before whom Andrews was questioned was apologetic toward the American. Andrews had been under arrest only technically and the judge explained he could hold him formally under arrest, but would not do so, in view of his position, and instead placed him under bond to appear for further examination.

U. S. MAKES INQUIRY.

The American Embassy made inquiries as to who had accused Andrews, but as yet has received no reply.

Yokoshuka is about 18 miles from Yokohama and is considered an important strategic zone. Strangers are warned against taking photographs without permission.

The police apparently believe Andrews took the photographs while making a trial trip in his motorboat. Andrews denied having photographed the fortifications. It is said that he is charged with having taken the photographs in conjunction with Japanese confederates.

Andrews is a member of the firm of Andrews & George, and has lived in Japan since his boyhood. He has large private interests here besides those of his firm, and had always been considered a friend of Japan.

ATTENDING CONVENTION

Mrs. Allan K. Kraus, wife of Dr. Kraus of Baltimore, and Dr. Cleaveland Floyd, director outpatient department, Boston Sanatorium, are among those attending the Tuberculosis convention at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

TUBERCULOSIS EXPERTS WARN OF NEGLECT

Every third person between fifteen and sixty dies of tuberculosis in Boston.

The Boston Tuberculosis Association is making every effort to impress on general physicians the need of more careful diagnosis. Periodic examinations of every family is recommended.

DANGER IN NEGLECT.

The tuberculosis experts declare that the disease is not necessarily dangerous, unless neglected, and point out case after case that could have been saved if the physician and patient had realized the danger

The second session of the Tuberculosis Institute conducted by the Association for the benefit of all Boston doctors, opened this morning at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

Dr. Edward O. Otis, president of the Massachusetts Tuberculosis League was scheduled to speak on "Symptomatic Treatment of Tuberculosis." After luncheon the delegation, which includes the most noted authorities on the disease in the country, will go by machine to North Reading Sanatorium where a clinic demonstration will be held. The latest and most successful treatments discovered will be shown to the physicians.

EXPLAINS TREATMENT.

Dr. John B. Hawes presided at the first session at which Dr William B. Smith, visiting physician of Massachusetts General Hospital, spoke, illustrating his address with colored slides. Dr. George W. Holmes, the X-ray specialist showed slides illustrating the types of lung infections commonly found in consumption victims. Dr. Hawes sketched the physical history of the cases and explained the treatment of each.

Among those in attendance are: Dr. Cleveland Floyd, director of the out patient department, Boston Sanatorium and Mrs. Allan K. Kraus, wife of Dr. Kraus of Baltimore.

ALGERIA HAREMS FOUND FLOURISHING

New York, Oct. 6.—The Harems of Algeria, according to Miss Katherine Toland Stewart, artist, who arrived by the French liner La Touraine from Havre, are flourishing as if there were no financial and commercial depression anywhere in the world. Miss Stewart has been painting in Northern Africa and has seen some harem interiors that astonished her. She also met the wives of the owners, some of the latter of whom had twelve and supported them luxuriously and treated them well.

JUDGE RULES NO HOUSE IS BIG ENOUGH TO HOLD MOTHER-IN-LAW

THANKFUL HE WED ORPHAN

Waltham Court Hears Tale of "Cave Man" Tactics and Failure to Provide

A mosaic of charges in which "cave man" tactics, failure to provide, extravagance and uncongenial mothers-in-law were indiscriminately intermingled featured the non-support case brought in the Waltham District Court by Mrs. Margaret Quinlan, twenty-two years old, of Gilkey street, Watertown.

At the conclusion of the case, after Francis Quinlan, the husband, had been ordered to pay the woman $10 a week, Judge Samuel Abbott unburdened his mind concerning mothers-in-law, as follows:

"I'm a married man myself, but thank the Lord I married an orphan. There isn't a house big enough to hold a mother and her daughter-in-law. It's impossible for them to live together, and I wouldn't give a pinch of snuff for any two that could. It isn't natural, that's all. And the same thing goes for women and their sons-in-law."

Mrs. Quinlan was stylishly dressed in a black velvet gown with a lining of some orange material, sheer silk stockings and black shoes.

In Romance

MISS ANNABELLE LANE.

Portland, Oct. 6.—A ceremony of great interest to Portland society will take place in Philadelphia when Miss Annabelle Lane who was chosen as "Miss Portland" at a recent beauty contest, will wed Francis J. Braun of Portland and Philadelphia.

Their romance is a romance of the Maine woodlands, where the father of young Braun owns extensive property.

NEW WONDERS FOR WAR GIVEN U. S. TESTS

Washington, Oct. 6.—Shells and tractors that seem to think for themselves and other post-war marvels of ordnance development were demonstrated today at the Aberdeen, Maryland, proving grounds in connection with the annual meeting of the Army Ordnance Association and affiliated engineering societies.

Shells with fuses devised to withstand the shock of firing yet withholding their detonation until the touch of the cloth of an airplane wing vied for honors with projectiles of 2,000 pounds whose fuses wait until 16 inches of armor steel has been penetrated before they explode their destructive charges.

Another airplane development will be shown tonight when flares will be dropped having sufficient power to light a whole field of action below for six or seven minutes with a glare equivalent to that of 10,000 electric bulbs.

A reconnaissance tractor carrying a crew of two, designed to maintain twelve miles an hour in rough country and cross any stream with its boat-shaped body and screw propellers, attracted attention.

RIFLE IN MAILS WOUNDS CARRIER

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 6.—William Alexander, rural mail carrier of Mt. Morris, near here, was wounded today when a loaded rifle, sent through the mails from Philadelphia, exploded as he was lifting the package containing it from a sack. The bullet entered his right arm, shattering the bone.

Day's News in Jazz Time

By MORTON BIRGE

The baseball series springs a "dud"
And nips some bets right in the bud;
A Newton lad declares his dad
Has stolen his "intended."

While cost goes up for thee and thine,
They're feeding milk to Paxton swine;
Now Curley sits at peace with Fitz,
The party breach is mended.

New Jersey parents full of joy;
A husky, bouncing baby boy;
Then what a whirl; it is a girl—
The nurse had made an error.

The envoys deadlock over Thrace
While allies hesitate to face
The facts in hand with stern demand
To halt the Turkish terror.

A Waltham jurist says that wife
And ma-in-law mean only strife,
And that a man should never plan
To have them live together.

Gay Wellesley wedding feast is marred,
A keg of whiskey, old and hard,
Drops out of sight; 'twas stolen quite
As lightly as a feather.

CARPENTER HURT IN 32-FOOT FALL

James Graham, a carpenter of No. 63 Chestnut avenue, Jamaica Plain, today fell thirty-two feet from a staging on a building at No. 123 Landseer street. He was taken to City Hospital suffering from contusions and bruises.

JILTS GIRL TO MARRY HIS EX-WIFE

devil of a mess." He told her, according to Mrs. Crocker, that his ex-wife had insisted on coming to Boston with him, and bringing their little daughter. They were staying at his home on Massachusetts avenue.

"Ed begged me to help him get rid of his former wife. I told him it was his own responsibility and that he would have to send her back before I would see him again. He got down on his knees and begged me not to go back on him, and declared passionately that he loved me and that he didn't care to live unless I would marry him," said Mrs. Crocker.

CALLS ON WIFE.

"'You can trust me to the end of the world, Grace, because I love you more than I have ever loved any woman, and I cannot think of life without you,' he said over and over.

"Finally, I was touched because he seemed like such a boy, and seemed so sincere in wanting to get rid of his old wife. I agreed to go to his house while he was away and ask his wife for him. He waited for me while I went to see her," related Mrs. Crocker.

"I went to her door and said, 'I want to see my fiance.' She looked at me and drew herself up and said in a cold tone, 'My husband is out and won't be back for some time. I am sure he doesn't want to see you, and you'd better forget him or you'll find yourself in trouble.'

"Then I told her that if she didn't go away I'd have her arrested for living in the house of a man to whom she wasn't married. That frightened her so much that when Ed went home after being with me, she made him take her out that very night and marry her.

"Ed came to see me continually after that, but didn't tell me that he had married her. He kept begging me to wait until he 'got things straightened out,' and assuring me over and over that he loved me as he had never loved another woman.

CRIED LIKE A BABY.

"I believed him, until I learned the truth. When he came to see me last night I told him that I knew that he was married and that I never wanted to see him again. He broke down and cried like a baby. 'Grace you never can understand what it would mean to me if you gave me up,' he sobbed over and over. 'I will kill myself if you look at another man. For heaven's sake, trust me, and I'll get the marriage annulled some way and we shall have our happiness yet.'

"I told him that although I shall not be able to stop loving him all of a sudden that I couldn't see him any more, and that I would never trust him again.

"I have given up everything for him. He was so jealous that he made me give up seeing even my women friends. I have given up my work, and my family didn't approve of him, so I cannot go back to them. Only my little fourteen-year-old daughter liked him. She understands and is so sweet to me because she knows I am suffering," said the jilted woman.

"His wife has a side to the story, too," she added fairly. "I hold no resentment toward her, except that she has said dreadful things against me. She no doubt loves him just as I do, and she told a friend of mine that she married him because he told her that I had deserted him.

"He is a nartist at making love, and he knows how to play one woman against another. He was wonderful to her, and divorced her three years ago so that she could marry another man with whom she was infatuated. It broke his heart at the time, and he told me that it killed his love for her. I met him soon after, and we have been engaged two years.

BEGGED HIM TO COME.

"She didn't marry the other man, but went back to her family in Walden and let her mother and father take care of her little girl. She was happy there and never wrote to him until a few months ago, when she began sending him letters telling him how much his little daughter needed a father, and begging him to come to see her. He showed me the letters and I thought everything was above-board. I trusted him because he told me that his love was dead forever.

"I shall try to forget him, and I hope that his wife finds happiness at last. My own life is a wretched remnant. I shall live for my children and try to pick things up where I dropped them so trustingly two years ago."

Ten Billion in Gold Used Up in 430 Years

Washington, Oct. 6.—Ten billion dollars worth of gold has been used up in industrial arts or disappeared in the last 430 years. In spite of the waste, eight billion dollars' worth is in circulation or in banks or public treasuries of the world.

The Department of Commerce today made public a report on gold production. Since the discovery of America, when accurate gold statistics were first kept, eighteen billion dollars worth has been produced.

Two billion of the eight billion dollars gold in the world is in the United States treasury.

nearly all black, there are now three births to one death. Americans have taught them sanitary methods, and have prevented them murdering each other in revolution. The population is five times what it was when Hayti revolted against France. By and by it will overflow. Then will come another problem. If the white man's science produces the same comparative birth rate in China, Africa and other countries, what will be the answer to the inevitable problem?

Natives employed by our government at Pribiloff Islands have slaughtered 30,000 seals this year. The skins are worth $3,600,000. Last year they killed 26,500. The price was too low. Government kept the skins and will auction off the 56,500 at St. Louis.

In those Northern waters 820 whales were caught this season. That means 30,000 barrels of oil, which would have been important when human beings depended upon whales for their lighting oil. It doesn't matter now, with the millions of barrels of kerosene and the electric bulbs.

GROVELAND FIRE CLEANS OUT FARMER

Haverhill, Oct. 6.—Fire today did this damage to Angelo Bogaccio, dairy farmer of Seven Star Road, Groveland, near here:

It destroyed his home and every bit of furniture in it, and his stable; killed fourteen cows and two horses, burned seven tons of hay, two automobiles and all his argicultural tools, and all the outhouses on the farm. Damage was $15,000, insurance only $7,000.

The fire was discovered by Bogaccio's son as he opened the door of the barn. He was thrown back by the rush of flame. The green hay was burning fiercely, and already several of the cattle had been killed.

The Groveland Fire Department was summoned, but the nearest fire pump is a mile from the scene of the fire. It was necessary to fight the fire with only chemical apparatus. Scores of automobilists, attracted by the flames, which lit up the entire countryside, came to the scene and tried to help, but their efforts were futile. Even the chickens were roasted alive.

COPS MUST LIVE IN BOSTON OR QUIT FORCE

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson today issued this order to the department:

H. A. Wilson

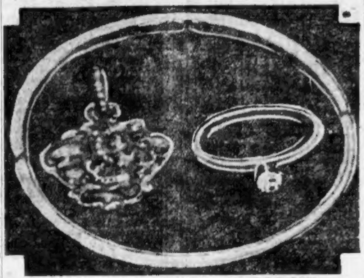
"All police officers in the Greater Boston department who do not live within the city limits of Greater Boston must move at once to conform to the rule of the department. Failure to do so will mean immediate dismissal from the force."

Since the police strike this rule the department has not been strictly observed, but the commissioner made it plain that hereafter it would be enforced.

EXPECT CROWDER'S CUBAN PLAN TO PASS

Havana, Cuba, Oct. 6.—The Cuban Senate has approved the $50,00 loan bill. Unless the measure is amended the action taken last night assures the passage of the five part reform program advocated by Major General E. H. Crowder, personal representative in Cuba of President Harding. General Crowder expects to leave for Washington early next week to confer on the policy to be pursued on his return to Havana in November.

JEWELRY MAY SOLVE HOSPITAL MYSTERY



WORN BY "BERNICE WALDRON"

Photo of ring, bracelet and scapular worn by Boston's mystery girl who gave her name as Bernice Waldron and as Livingstone on being picked up suffering from morphine poison on the streets. She is now at the City Hospital. The bracelet is oddly etched and is marked "14 K Gold. P. J. Co."

POISONED GIRL STILL HIDES IDENTITY

Jewelry may be the means of identifying City Hospital's mystery girl, who says her name is Bernice Waldron, but refuses to give the police any further information. She is suffering from morphine poison, believed to have been self-administered.

For days the girl has baffled the physicians and police who have attempted to learn her real identity. She is virtually a prisoner at the hospital until such time as she tires of being questioned and tells of her past. The police are working on the theory that Miss Waldron may have been the daughter of some wealthy person.

During the almost continuous questioning to which she has been subjected, the girl has refused to give the officials even an inkling as to her real identity. Jewelry found on her may solve the mystery.

How to Know Good Whiskey From Bad, Told in Court

Worcester, Oct. 6.—It happened in Central District Court.

Attorney Davis F. O'Connell, to witness in a liquor case: "Can you tell the difference between good whiskey and moonshine?"

Witness: "I don't believe I can."

Then up spoke Judge Samuel Utley.

"I can," said his honor. "Real whiskey means a lingering death, while moonshine causes instant death."

FIND FARMER DEAD WITH HIS THROAT CUT

The body of James Hansell, sixty-two years old, a farmhand, was found today on a bed in the home of Raymond Skilton in Burlington, with a gaping wound in the throat. On a table beside the bed was a blood-stained razor and a note:

"In the morning my body will be a corpse."

Phillip Callings, another farmhand, discovered the body and notified Skilton, who in turn called Medical Examiner Vernon C. Stuart of Woburn, who declared the case suicide.

Hansell had been working for the Skiltons four months. For several days prior to his death he had been greatly depressed and brooding.

'FUDGE' ENABLES AMERICAN TO BEAT RIVALS

Why is the Boston American always first with the result of the ball game? Why is it first with the box score?—It's the "fudge."

Turn to Page 1 of this issue of the Boston American.

Pay particular attention to the line of type at the top, printed across seven columns in red ink. Then at the little boxed section of type printed in red.

In newspaper parlance it's called a fudge. Nobody, not even the foreman of the composing room, who knows more about printing than Gutenberg, can tell why it's called a fudge. But we will tell you why we use a fudge, and how it's done.

NOT USED BY RIVALS.

The American is the only newspaper in Boston which uses a fudge.

The reason that other newspapers are loth to use it is because it costs about $100,000 to install, and is very expensive to maintain.

A fudge means that the readers of the American can get important news practically as soon as it happens. Between the reporter who telephones in news of sufficient importance to warrant a fudge, and the newsboy who offers you the copy with that news printed in red on Page 1 of the American, there elapses the startlingly small time of three minutes.

It used to take fifteen minutes by the old system known as replating.

GAINS 12 MINUTES.

The Boston American spent $100,000 to install, and several hundred dollars a week to maintain, a device that gives its readers important news twelve minutes before any other newspaper can give it, even if they get it. About that phase there will be more later.

When a newspaper type page is made up, a matrice is made from it by the exertion of pressure and heat on composition sheets.

From this matrice a stereotype, the facsimile of the type page, then is molded.

That stereotype, made of thin metal, is curved to fit the rotary cylinders of the huge presses. It is from these curved cylinders that newspapers may be printed at high speed.

PRINTS IN RED

When the type for the first page is locked up in its chase for an edition, two blank spaces are left. No type appears there. The spaces are left for a separate fast printing on a little fudge press in red ink.

The fudge headline to be printed in red differs from other type. It has a curved instead of flat face. It is locked in a special form about the size of the type itself.

The paper is printed direct from this little form, which is locked onto a cylinder half the size of the main cylinders of the press.

REPLATING UNNECESSARY.

The body type to be used in the fudge is set up in special linotypes. Each type slug has a curved face and tapers inwards so that the type itself may be locked into a little chase that will hold about ten lines. When these little chases or turtles are locked onto the small fudge cylinder of the press, the type follows the curve of the cylinder. Printing direct from the type is possible. It is this that saves time.

Replating is unnecessary.

From twelve to fifteen minutes may be gained on any newspaper not equipped with fudge.

HEARST MAN'S INVENTION.

The fudge is the invention of George Pancoast, one time secretary to Mr. Hearst, now head of the Hearst mechanical service, and inventor of the finest high-speed color newspaper presses built. It is these presses—the despair of other newspapers—that make printing of the Sunday paper in four colors a delight—not a fright.

A word about the red ink. Many have wondered why the fudge and the headlines telling about the news in the fudge are printed in red ink.

The reason is that readers have become accustomed to look for the last minute news in red ink. The red ink sets it off from the rest of the matter on page 1.

The red ink indicates the very latest news of the moment.—The fudge news.

HOW THE AMERICAN'S RED "FUDGE" IS MADE

Photos show the mechanical operation of "fudging" that explains why the Boston American can publish big news from 12 to 15 minutes ahead of other Boston newspapers. Below, on right, is a compositor setting the red type seen on page one on a "fudge" linotype machine. Below, on left, is the type he has set assembled in what is known as a "fudge" chase. The chase and type are curved to fit the cylinder onto which it is clamped in the pressroom as seen above.

WASHINGTON SHOWN IN ODD PORTRAIT

An interesting picture of George Washington, portraying him toothless and with a haggard appearance, created a furore when displayed before the Society of Colonial Wars at No. 9 Ashburton place.

It was explained by Frank W. Bailey, local art expert, that the portrait was painted in 1789 by a now forgotten artist, between the time of the extraction of Washington's own teeth and the installation of "store teeth."

WILD RUNAWAY ALARMS MANY ON PARK ST.

Scores of pedestrians scurried to safety today when a heavy delivery wagon behind a frightened horse careened down Park street, dashed between two other wagons, striking both, turned the corner into Tremont street on two wheels, and then overturned in the middle of the crowded street.

Joseph Shea, the driver of the wagon, was the coolest of the hundred witnesses and actors, leaping to safety as the wagon turned turtle.

Shea, driving the delivery wagon of P. Libby & Co., Hartford street, was coming slowly down the steep hill on Park street, when the wagon began to skid down on the horse. The animal became frightened and started his mad dash.

Up the hill were coming a Boston Ice Company wagon, and a delivery wagon owned by H. M. Doyle & Company, Weld avenue, Roxbury. The two drivers pulled each to one side to give the oncomer all the room possible, but the wagon struck both teams, injuring a horse on the ice wagon.

At the corner Traffic Officer Fred F. Langflee leaped for the horse's head and checked him, but it was too late to prevent the overturning of the wagon.

FIRES 6 SHOTS AT POLICEMEN IN HIS HOME

A Somerville firemen and two policemen narrowly escaped death when a desperate armed man fired six shots at them at a range of only a few feet when they broke down a bathroom door behind which he had barricaded himself to resist arrest.

Leo Dwyer, twenty-eight years old, of No. 240 Highland avenue, Somerville, was the man who fired at the officers.

Patrolmen Denis Mulqueeney and Edward Culliton of the Somerville police force, together with Walter Smith of Ladder Company No. 2, were the targets for his shots.

Mulqueeney and Culliton called at the Highland avenue house to serve a warrant on Dwyer, who was charged by Lawrence Mobila with threatening his life. Mobila keeps a fruit store opposite the house where Dwyer rooms.

Dwyer immediately ran into the bathroom on the second floor and locked the door, warning the police that there would be trouble if they tried to force their way in.

The door was broken down. Dwyer was found standing in the middle of the bathroom with a loaded revolver in his hand. He immediately opened fire, but all of his shots went wild save one, which passed through Culliton's coat sleeve and grazed him slightly on the arm.

The two policemen had their own weapons drawn, and Patrolman Mulqueeny replied with two shots, both of which missed the mark.

Culliton and Ladderman Smith then overpowered Dwyer and he was taken to the police station, where he was charged with assault with intent to kill.

Rasely, formerly secretary of the Better Business Letter Association.

ASSOCIATION URGES COAL SUBSTITUTES

The United Improvement Association has urged householders to use every possible substitute for hard coal in an effort to bring down the price of anthracite. The statement issued said, in part: "We believe the only solution to beat the combination that controls the production, distribution and price of anthracite coal is for the consumer to use every possible substitute." An average of about 305 cars of anthracite is entering New England daily, according to the latest figures from the office of the fuel administrator.

MOVIE WORLD NEWS AND GOSSIP

By FREDERICK JOHNS

CHARLES B. Dillingham, famous theatrical manager and producer, was the manager of Julia Marlowe in 1901 when the original stage version of "When Knighthood Was in Flower" was produced at the Criterion Theatre, New York. Commenting on the Cosmopolitan picturization of Charles Major's historical romance, now playing to capacity audiences at the same theatre, Mr. Dillingham said that it illustrated the wonderful progress in stagecraft during the past two decades in this country.

"When we produced 'When Knighthood Was in Flower' twenty-one years ago we did it in the best style possible in those days, and the public thought it was wonderful. Now, when I see the same play pictured so magnificently on the screen, it gives me a strange feeling to realize how insignificant our poor little effort wa

The picture is a revelation, even to an experienced producer, of the progress of stagecraft developed by the broader medium of the screen. And even in comparison with the stage stars who preceded her in the role of Princess Mary Tudor I consider Marion Davies' work incomparable.

The cast which supports her is unprecedented, because no theatre giving performances nightly could afford to pay the combined salaries of all the stage and screen stars who appear in the pictorial version of 'When Knighthood Was in Flower,' even if they could be gathered together into one permanent organization.

A HINDOO WEDDING

WHAT is said to be one of the most novel scenes ever put into motion pictures has been made a part of "The Young Rajah," a Paramount picture, in which Rodolph Valentino is starred. It is a Hindu wedding sequence, directed by Philip Rosen.

The setting represents the colossal throne room in the Hindu Rajah's palace, and in architecture and investiture is a perfect representation of such an interior. The research department at the Paramount studio obtained all necessary data and photographs and supplied valuable suggestions which were carried out to the letter by the architects, the interior decorators, the property men, the costumers and other branches of the work of production.

Rodolph Valentino, playing the Rajah, is married in this episode to Wanda Hawley, leading woman. Valentino is dressed in another one of the colorful Hindu costumes designed by Natacha Rambova, with a large turban of silver cloth and ornamented with strings of pearls. Miss Hawley years a beautiful Hindu bridal costume, with her feet bare, after the Hindu fashion, and each toe ornamented by a pearl ring.

SHAKESPEARE ON SCREEN.

IN a banquet scene in the court of King James I. of England, which is part of the new Paramount picture produced by George Fitzmaurice, "To Have and To Hold," several historic personages have been reproduced. These are William Shakespeare, Ben Johnson, and the Duke of Buckingham. The cast includes Betty Compson, Bert Lytell, Theodore Kosloff, Walter Long and other members of the Paramount Stock Company.

LLOYD GEORGE'S OFFICE.

THOSE who wonder just what kind of an office Premier Lloyd George of England works in will have an opportunity to see it in "The Man Who Saw Tomorrow," Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture. No. 10 Downing street was reproduced exactly at the Lasky studio for the scenes in the picture which show Meighan as the Home Secretary.

BARTHELMESS' TRIUMPH.

RICHARD BARTHELMESS is the white hope of the "movies," according to the New York State League of Women Voters, of which Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, wife of the celebrated banker, is the president. Mr. Barthelmess has been selected to represent the motion picture industry by the league in connection with its Orphans' Day celebration next month.

"Your name has been selected from a list of prominent screen stars of the type that you represent—the new type that stands for finer, brighter things in the silent drama," reads the invitation to the young film star.

GIRL SETTLES BOYS' FIGHT WITH GUN

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 6.—A boys' quarrel over chestnuts they had gathered was settled with a shotgun in the hands of a 14-year-old girl here with the result that Denny Wright, and Billy Simpson, 11, are suffering from buckshot wounds described by physicians as painful, but not fatal. The girl, Norine Mason, interceded in the argument in defense of her brother, but told the police she had fired only to frighten the other boys away. No arrest has been made.

MRS. HEARST LIFE MEMBER OF PARTY

Washington, Oct. 6.—Mrs. William Randolph Hearst has joined the National Woman's party as a life member, it was learned at the party's headquarters here today. Mrs. Hearst's membership fee of $1,000 will be used in maintaining the New York headquarters of the party.

Plays Princess

MARION DAVIES.

SISTER OF KING A MEDIEVAL FLAPPER

Did you ever hear of a medieval flapper?

Marion Davies, star of Cosmopolitan Productions, discovered her. In other words, Princess Mary Tudor, sister of King Henry VIII., was a medieval flapper, according to Miss Davies, who is portraying Princess Mary on the screen in "When Knighthood Was in Flower."

"I love the character of Mary Tudor," says the fair star. "I've read her life in every version ; could find and collected all the data available and I feel that I know her pretty intimately.

"She was full of life and she wanted to have a good time and when she fell in love she was carried away by the romance of it all.

"I don't believe that girls change much from age to age. I think there have always been flappers—only today they're sensible flappers. They dress sanely. They've dispensed with the unnecessary. Soon, I hope, they'll dispense with so much schooling.

"Unless a girl is studying for some special profession I think she should go in for dancing, fencing, voice culture—that sort of thing—something she will live with day by day. It will be more beneficial to her in the long run than so much algebra, etymology and rhetoric."

"When Knighthood Was in Flower" comes to the Park October 23.

CARIBOU HERDS ARE LARGEST IN YEARS

Dawson, Y. T., Oct. 6.Tens of Thousands of wild caribou are now swarming over the hills through the suburbs of Dawson for a radius of fifty miles. The great herd which annually treks through this district is now moving northward. Large herds swimming the Yukon have interfered with the progress of steamers in the river. The herd is so vast that the hunting by men, women and children, who have provided nearly every home with deer meat for the Winter, has made no noticeable effect on it.

CLARKE ARREST FRAMEUP, SAYS KU KLUX KLAN

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 6.—The Imperial Kloncilium, ruling body of the Ku Klux Klan, in a statement made public today, denied truth of charges against Edward Young Clarke, imperial wizard pro-tem, indicted on the allegation of using the mails to defraud.

"The charges against Mr. Clarke and on which the indictment was found," said the statement, signed by W. J. Simmons, imperial wizard, and other members of the Kloncilium, "were charges presented by the same crowd of former employes who were discharged from the organization and who have filed one law suit after another ever since they were removed from the payroll."

Clarke was not arrested by federal officers and carried to the Federal Building, the statement continues. But "on the contrary, when he learned of the indictment, drove down to the United tSates Court, made bond and went about his business." Clarke's bond was fixed at $500.

Frances Weed to Make Society Debut at Country Club, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

WE hear them already, the rustlings of the curtain as it rises on the social stage for the season—while, wide-eyed and breathless, the debutantes hover in the wings, all ready to "go on."

One of the very first buds to make the all-important "first appearance" is Miss Frances Duncan Weed of Brookline, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Weed, are introducing her at a dinner dance tonight at the Country Club.

Miss Weed, a tall, slender, brown-haired girl, is of a most refreshing type, for she isn't the least bit "blase." For some reason or other so many of the debbies feel called upon to assume terrifically worldly-wise airs. They try to make you think they're horribly sophisticated and "all that sort of thing" when most of them, poor dears, would love to be natural if only they felt they could be. At any rate, it's a very pleasant to meet a debutante who isn't like that.

Sharing honors with Miss Weed at tonight's dinner dance will be Miss Grace Fessenden Sargent, also of Brookline, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan A. Sargent. The two buds were classmates at the Winsor School, from which both girls graduated last June.

MRS. "BOBBIE" HERRICK, Jr., she who was formerly Thelma Hall, is one of the attractive young women whom Miss Katherine Abbott has procured as a saleslady for next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, when society runs Jay's gown shop in aid of the Children's Hospital.

Both Miss Abbott and her distinguished mater, Mrs. Gordon Abbott, are working hard indeed to make a success of next week's unique project, of which Mrs. "Reggie" Foster (Frances Hoar) is in charge. A few of the other young women whom Miss Abbott has enlisted to serve behind the counter next week are the Misses Ella Snelling, Betty Beals, Nancy and Lucy Carnegie, Constance Thayer, Mary Weld, Louise Fessenden, Cornelia Hallowell and Frances Weld, as well as Mrs. Herrick, Jr., Mrs. Henry P. King, Jr., and Miss Abbott's sister, Mrs. Francis B. Lothrop (Eleanor Abbott).

The Abbotts, by the way, are making a long season of it at "Glass Head," their Summer place at Manchester-by-the-Sea, before coming to their town house on Beacon street for the Winter.

BOTH Mrs. Boylston Beal and her daughter, Miss Betty Beal, are down on the North Shore for one of their annual or semi-annual trips from England, where Mr. Beal is attached to the American embassy in London. It has been several Summers now since the Beals have occupied their North Shore estate at Manchester for the season, but they come over to these shores quite frequently, and still keep alive their many interests and connections here.

MRS. JOHN BUTLER SWAN of Boston and her two daughters, the Misses Helen and Marguerite Swan, are the guests of Miss Helen C. Butler at the latter's Stockbridge villa.

'KNIGHTHOOD' BREAKS RECORD IN LONDON

By Universal Service.

London, Oct. 6.—"When Knighthood Was in Flower" is drawing record audiences at the Scala Theatre. With the Prince of Wales gracing the theatre with his appearance at the opening performance, no other playhouse in London is able to equal the Scala's illustrious and distinguished clientele, which is applauding the great picture of King Henry the Eighth's time.

The check for one thousand pounds, signed by Miss Marion Davies, for the box for the general hospitals' fund, was presented to the Prince before the camera. He spoke again about the star's wonderful acting and good looks, also about the wonderful photography and correctness of the detail. The Prince bowed from his box to the audience in the intermission. The streets were thronged and the house was packed.

PICTURES OF PRINCE.

At a luncheon Mr. Potter, representative of the Cosmopolitan Productions, made a speech to the newspaper men. Moving pictures were taken of the Prince entering the theatre. Potter said:

"The Prince told me that this is the first time he has ever made an official appearance at a moving picture performance."

Lyn Harding was presented to the prince.

The London Times, the morning after the presentation, said:

"Knighthood received signal honors, for the prince has already seen a private exhibition of it at York House."

In its review of the play, the London Daily Telegraph calls it "one of the most beautiful specimens of the film producers' art the world has ever seen," and one which does infinite credit to the producer. It says:

AUDIENCE ENTRANCED

"At the first public exhibition yesterday at the Scala Theatre, which was graced by the presence of the Prince of Wales, the large audience sat entranced as scene after scene, each almost perfect in its way, unrolled before it. Now we were witnessing high revelry at the court of England; anon we crossed the channel and were in the court of France.

"Among other interested spectators were Grand Duke Michael, Countess Torby, Marquis Blandford, Major and Lady Zia Wernher, Honorable Lionel Tennyson and Mrs. Tennyson.

"The presentation of the film was preceded by a luncheon at the Cafe Royal, where a number of people connected with the cinema industry were guests of Captain Potter and directors of Cosmopolitan productions. Sir Alan Anderson, chairman of the organization committee of the combined hospitals' appeal, presided. He expressed gratitude to the owners of the film for their generous gift to his committee of the whole of the first week's proceeds."

PRIZE LETTERS CONDEMN MOVIE CENSORSHIP AS UNNECESSARY

HELD MENACE TO ART; INSULT TO PUBLIC

The proposal for a State censorship of moving pictures is condemned in advance.

The censorship proposition is one of the questions to be submitted to referendum at coming State election.

Censors Take Rights of People, Says Griffith

David W. Griffith, famous movie director, today delivered a scathing denunciation of movie censorship.

DAVID W. GRIFFITH

"Censorship has been the means of repressing public sentiment by autocracies," he said. "Motion picture censorship would mean that an idea expressed in pictures or words could be obliterated by an arbitrary few. Censorship was born in the old regimes of Germany and Russia. It is but a step from the censorship of pictures to the censorship of the written word.

"I have no right to tell the citizens of Massachusetts how they should vote on this question of movie censorship, but I do want the people of this State to understand thoroughly what they are doing if they contemplate voting for the censorship. They are handing over the privilege of all to be decided upon by a few only."

The Boston American invited letters discussing the idea. Immediately letters arrived, opposing the censorship plan for several reasons.

The American offers cash prizes of $250, $100 and $50 for the best letters on the subject; also $2 for every letter printed.

The first letters coming in offer the following chief arguments against censorship:

Unconstitutional
Contrary to public policy.
Too many laws already.
Detrimental to vast business.
Infringement of personal liberty.
Prejudicial to the artistic impulse which is so vital to best screen production.

Representative letters already in hand include the following

BLACK IDIOCY.

Editor Boston American

The motion picture, ever since it was born in the lowly setting of a penny arcade, has struggled to elevate itself to the dignity of an art. In the beginning that struggle was futile, for the cinema was an experiment, and conditions were chaotic.

Then the films became a business, a huge industry, with billions of dollars invested and thousands of persons employed. The vain groping for artistic heights was strangled by the commercial crowd that took hold, whose ideals were confined entirely to box office statements.

The buttonhole makers were gradually weaned out. Real writers interested themselves in the literary end of the business. Real directors began to make the pictures. The early ingenues and fatty leading men passed out, and [illegible] actors began to play in the pictures. The first gleam of light was showing. The German films arrived and showed us the American product. There was a sensational [illegible] of [illegible]. The movies were about to come into their own.

It looked like the birth of a fifth estate.

Now there is the menace of censorship showing its ugly face. State censorship will deliver the death [illegible] to the now too strong artistic impulse without which the moving pictures cannot exist.

Since the war there has been a definite movement on the part of a certain class of people in this country to increase the already huge population of [illegible] and [illegible]. [illegible] censorship will accomplish that mission for the films was a tremendous influence.

Prohibition is bad enough. Censorship is insufferable. I hope that nothing but failure will greet the [illegible] element which seeks to [illegible] black idiocy for gray matter.

Cambridge. JEAN JAYAS.

Editor of the Boston American

The law which the State Legislature passed for State censorship of moving pictures to be submitted to State election referendum ought to be voted down. In the first place I question very much the constitutionality of such a law. But constitutional or not it is unnecessary. We have too many laws already, as a judge in Lawrence court recently observed.

The present statutes fully protects the public from improper pictures just as from improper exhibitions of any kind. Then there is grave doubt that any State censoring body would function to best advantage of the moving picture public. Finally, such a law smacks too much of the paternalistic form of government, which our country is taking on too rapidly.

A. L. G.

NEED COAL NOT CENSOR.

Editor Boston American,

Once again the public has to demonstrate by suffrage its antagonism towards a "movement" that has a tendency to suppress. There is no question in my mind, but that the amendment placed before the people of this enlightened State will be defeated. There is no sound argument for a Stat movie censor at the present time. A good coal distributor for our Winter requirements is what we really do need.

The industry is cleaner now than it ever was. The passage of this law would be a detriment to the business and also to the public, as no one man can even function the "movies" properly to satisfy a large community, let alone a whole State. Our present censorship laws are stringent as they are.

The co-operation of our movie theatres for the best interests of the general public, as far as cleanliness, education, instruction and enjoyment are concerned, are being bettered daily. They surely have brought about the old time saying

"The greatest good for the greatest number."

To abridge this right, is to jeopardize an industry that is essential to the welfare of the public at large, besides inflicting an unjust, undemocratic and wilful injury to a legitimate and ever growing enterprise. It is just this what the public is opposed to, constant interference on the part of our lawmakers in every essential line of legitimate industries.

Give us good, sensible laws, allow good enterprises to better their efforts and give the public the rightful benefit of the movies' endeavors.

BENJAMIN KADETS.

WHO IS COMPETENT

Editor Boston American

Shall we vote for Movie Censorship? Shall we have them tell us when to put on our Summer and Winter clothes as they do in China? Shall we refuse to allow the [illegible] in art? Shall we appoint a committee to tell us when we may eat? How many more foolish laws are we making?

Who is his brother's keeper and who is competent to do this censoring anyway? A too strict censoring of the movies means discouragement to writers, actors and producers, besides lack of mental stimulus and enjoyment to the poor who must find relaxation from dull and toil-fagged lives by their one great place of enjoyment, the moving picture theatre.

Take care, you lawmakers, in the present fanatical wave of Puritanical tyranny, that the pendulum does not swing far afield in the return stroke. Beware of the last straw.

A. I. R.

PRESENT LAWS PROTECT

Editor Boston American

Where is there anything fair in a law which prohibits the people from seeing things which they properly should see in order to form a fair opinion and just estimate on matters of [illegible] interest?

It is [illegible] to establish a system, to which a censor can take away the pleasure of an entire people and can make them see only what he approves of.

This is a system, not democracy."

If we allow censorship of the pictures which will establish a one man law, censorship of the press and personal liberty will follow and finally we will lose all that has made our country what it is.

Now our laws prohibit the showing of anything immoral, indecent, obscene or dangerous to youth. What better protection can be asked?

In these days of unfair dealing we cannot afford to surrender any of our liberties or rights. We need every privilege the screen can give us. As it now is, we are guaranteed fair play, and not as in Pennsylvania, a censorship state, prevented from seeing what is our right. We believe we are entitled to use our own judgment as to what we shall see and if we are capable of taking care of ourselves and our families, are intelligent enough to select the amusement for ourselves, our wives and our children.

Censorship means fewer pictures, advanced prices and entertainment the people do not want.

EDWARD JAMES NAGLE.
No. 874 Dorchester street, South Boston.

TOO MANY BOSSES.

Editor Boston American:

I am strongly opposed to any State censorship and shall vote against it at the next election. I think [illegible] has been subjected to too many bosses already. Some people cannot enjoy life themselves and don't feel right unless they can make trouble for somebody else. Of course there must be a good graft in it also somewhere, for there is never anything good to help the public for nothing.

Many persons cannot attend a regular show, and certainly would not want to go to see some moving picture which was half missing. This is not grandmother's age. If some of those persons who are so strong for censorship, would stay at home and not go to the movies some of us might help them by an occasional invitation to tea parties for indoor sports.

J. T. TILLINGHAST.
No. 603 Mountain avenue, Revere

GEN. COLE OPPOSED.

"Immoral and indecent motion pictures are being shown in the State of Massachusetts every day."—B. Preston Clark, leading advocate of censorship.

Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole, past commander of the State Department of the American Legion, was the first to challenge the above statement by Clark. He demanded that Mr. Clark furnish specific evidence.

If there is any truth at all in the assertion of Mr. Clark, General Cole, chairman of the Committee of Massachusetts Citizens Against Censorship, pledged the support of his organization in every way to prosecute offenders.

PLEDGES SUPPORT.

"Should there be any such pictures shown," wrote General Cole, "there is adequate remedy at law and under the circumstances it seems the height of absurdity for the people to have their liberties further restricted, their Bureaucracies [illegible], their increased and their taxes further [illegible] by a State censorship."

George F. Gilbody

City officials continue to express their disapproval of State censorship for the films. City Councillor George F. Gilbody said today: "I am opposed to the State motion picture censorship. I am opposed to any further curtailment of the liberties of the American people. Principally because at the present time we have too much legislation restricting the rights of citizens, which in my opinion, is the cause of the present era of unrest. The movie censorship would be adding fuel to the fire and cause great dissatisfaction. I can see no reason for a censorship in the State and the referendum that will appear on the ballot on election day should unquestionably be killed."

WARNER OPPOSED.

Charles H. Cole.

Joseph E. Warner, former Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, said: "I am absolutely opposed to State censorship of motion pictures. We have altogether too many laws heaping up on these State [illegible] which propose to supervise what we shall see, what we shall read, what we shall hear, what we shall wear and what we shall eat. I am as much opposed to State censorship of motion pictures as I am to any of these movements which seek to break down the constitutional guarantees of free press, free speech and the right of peaceful assembly."

PUBLIC ABLE TO JUDGE.

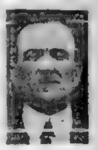
Melvin G. Rice, No. 57 Hancock street, said:

Melvin G. Rice

"The public certainly should be able to judge whether it wants the present type of moving picture or not. If the majority object, it is all right to talk about censorship. But because a few blue ribboned reformers desire to be guardians of the public morals, the majority is supposed to bow before them.

"I consider any attempt to foist the moving picture censorship on the people of this State as an insult to our citizens. I hope that every voter in the State will do his or her best to block this attempt on personal liberty."

J. A. Reilly, No. 73 Westland avenue, a member of the executive staff of a Boston department store, expressed his opinion:



J. A. Reilly

"It is an insult to the intelligence of the people of Massachusetts to attempt to put a film censor in office. It merely indicates that the State does not think its people are able to tell the good from the bad; that they must be shown by a superior being.

"Because one or two children see a movie and try to imitate it, there is no reason why the other thousands who want to see the same picture should be deprived of doing so. If the censorship bill is not defeated at the election in November, we may as well take the United States Constitution, tear it up and throw it into a wastebasket."

WEDDING PARTY IN DESPAIR

Newton Police and Phone Girl Guests Lay Blame to One Another

The mysterious disappearance of a keg of genuine, pre-war liquor—"the best stuff, sir, that has come down the pike since prohibition"—from the home of John Fleming, of River Ridge street, Wellesley during the marriage feast of his daughter Margaret is today causing a great shaking of heads in the Newton police department.

Incidentally, Margaret Fleming the bride disappeared with her new wedded husband, James McMahan, a Newton Patrolman shortly after the liquor vanished. But Mr and Mrs McMahan are on their honeymoon and will come back while the liquor will never never come back.

IT'S A SAD, SAD TALE.

It happened like this. Miss Fleming a supervisor at the Newton North Telephone Exchange, is one of the most widely known young ladies in Wellesley. HAMMERSTEIN WIDOW HAS A DRESS LEFT

New York, Oct. 6—"The clouds are beginning to roll away, and Teddy and I are in hopes of seeing better days."

So said Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein, widow of the impresario, as she sat in her room at the Waldorf Astoria fondling the silken head of her large collie, Teddie. She added:

"I feel certain of the recovery of the Manhattan Opera House, other theatres, my home, furniture, and the payment of damages. If my expectations are realized I shall be able to sign a check for $2,000,000. During October, my suits will be decided in the courts.

"But in the meantime I must work. What kind of work? I don't know—any kind I suppose. I am in hopes of getting a position as a chaperon or a companion in some reliable family.

"Just now everything is unsettled until I can recover my baggage from the Hotel Netherland, where I was very courteously treated. I have only one dress, the one I'm wearing. I had intended until recently to be [illegible] in a novelty jewelry [illegible] but that is uncertain.

"However everything will come out all right because I am in the right. I have implicit faith in Providence, which can do more than all the lawyers, judges and courts on earth."

The city will spend $10,615 for alterations and improvements on the Detention Hospital, Southampton street.

The hospital, according to Mayor Curley, has been allowed to run down and was in no condition to be placed in commission, if an epidemic of any form should strike the city.

When the alterations are completed the city will be able to handle any kind of an epidemic. The contract was awarded to the Thomas O'Connor Company.

What Makes Good Clothes Good

Can you distinguish the good from the near good? Can you always spot a price that's too high? Can you positively identify a last year's style the minute you see it?

If not, then the thing to do is to pick a store that deals only in good clothes, that shows only the new and approved styles, that bases its prices on cost rather than on what the traffic will stand, and that is more interested in giving satisfaction than in merely making sales. FATHER BEATS SON IN LOVE AND LAUGHS AT LOSER

Cheap Traffic Is All That Boston Gets

LESS THAN CAR LOADS FOR HUB

Official Tells How City Has Lost Export Freight Because of Discrimination

Unjust differentials have put the "L. C. L." sign on the commerce of the Port of Boston.

That point was emphasized by William T. Lamour, freight traffic manager of the Boston & Maine Railroad, at today's session of the differential freight rate hearing at the State House.

L. C. L. is a railroad freight [illegible] short [illegible] to saying or writing "less than carload lot." Mr. Lamour [illegible] and quoted figures to show that the import freight that comes to this port for Boston roads to forward especially to the Middle West now comes in [illegible] lots where formerly it came in trainload lots.

DWINDLED AWAY.

A grim picture was painted by Mr. Lamour of a big and profitable business in handling import freight now dwindled to pitifully small proportion.

He dwelt with grim emphasis on the import freight the Boston & Maine has received at its local docks for forwarding to Middle West points.

He gave in detail the number and amount of these import receipts for the past month. The list was 20 car loads wood pulp.

1 car load grind stones.

A few car-loads of old rope, grease and prepared cocoanut.

1-2 car load grind-stones.

He said that all the imports thus received by his road for Middle West consignees averaged about one car load a day for the month.

A FEW TOMBSTONES.

When the indignant freight traffic manager mentioned the half-car-load of imported tombstones, one of the Philadelphia-Baltimore counsel asked jocosely:

"Are these tombstones to be erected in memory of Boston's ocean commerce?"

"No," snapped Mr. Lamour, "if they were we would have kept them here."

The Boston & Albany is in about the import freight situation as the Boston & Maine, Mr. Lamour said, with the exception of its movements of imported burlaps.

"The reason for this," the Boston & Maine official continued, "is the differential rate operating against Boston and in favor of Philadelphia and New York. During the time of the greater prosperity of the port of Boston it was possible to make a deal with a steamship company to absorb the differential in their ocean rates, the same applying to export rates."

On the export end Mr. Lamour compared grain handling of 1916 with that of last year. Boston & Maine elevators handled 19,500,000 bushels of grain for export shipment in 1916. This shrunk to slightly more than 3,000,000 bushels last year.

The Boston & Maine's port facilities are now being used to only one-third capacity; in the case of grain to only one-twentieth capacity.

Hymnal Leads to Wedding

MISS OLIVE ATWOOD

As a climax to a romance that began in the Dudley Street Baptist Church when Miss Olive Atwood of No. 38 Dale street, Roxbury, shared her hymnbook with Carl R. Erlandson, a fellow singer, the couple will be married next Wednesday morning at the home of Miss Dale's parents.

A dinner in their honor will be given Wednesday evening at the Hotel Westminster.

Miss Atwood, whose singing has attracted considerable attention in Boston musical circles, has been a soloist in the Dudley Street Baptist Church for a number of years. Mr. Erlandson is a Boston man and is secretary of the traffic department of the Boston & Maine Railroad. He served in the navy during the war.

After their wedding trip the Erlandsons will make their home in Roxbury.

TAKES 2 TO HANG BENNY SWIM, SLAYER OF 2

Woodstock, N. B., Oct. 6.—Benny Swim, convicted murderer who was temporarily reprieved until a hangman could be found who would spring the trap, was hanged today with two men trying three times to do the job.

Swim was convicted of shooting his cousin, Mrs. Olive Swim Trenholme, and her husband, Harvey Trenholme, in a "true love sect" shooting at Benton Ridge.

He was first ordered hanged on July 15. Pleading insanity, he won a reprieve until September 15, but on that date no hangman could be found. Today two men who gave the same fictitious name of "M. A. Doyle" sprung the trap.

The first man tried it twice, but it failed to work, but the second finally worked it successfully.

MALDEN'S FIREBUG SETS 6TH

Police Find Two More Blazes on W. W. Hall's Property Near Linden Square

Malden police are bending every effort today to discover the mysterious firebug who set two fires near Linden square, making a total of six incendiary fires in that vicinity in a week. All but one of the fires were on property owned by William W. Hall, who conducts a store in the square.

The two fires were in the house occupied by John Groggin at Oliver and Beach streets and in a stable back of Hall's stores.

Officer Garrity had just finished with the fire in the barn and was about to make his duty call in the square when he noticed the blaze in the cellar of the Groggin home. He notified the family, who kept the fire under control until the arrival of the fire apparatus. Damage in each case was estimated at $200.

Hall was unable to give any clue to the identity of the incendiary. He told police that he had no knowledge of any enemies, and although he had recently raised the rent on some of his property two of the fires occurred previous to the raise.

PRINCESS RECEIVES IN 'PINCH'

Impromptu Function at Louisburg Square Involves $28 Hotel Bill

Princess Rhea Palznzana y Romanones received today informally.

It was at No. 8 Louisburg square, home of the Horace Morrisons. The Princess' guests were Inspectors Dorsey and O'Neil, headquarters representatives, who may be relied upon to rise to any social occasion.

The Princess accompanied the inspectors to headquarters for action regarding a claim that she owes the Parker House $28 on a check. There is also a charge that she defrauded an inn of $[illegible].

FROM SPANISH NOBLES.

The entire function today might be called a "pinch." The Princess was arrested to put it rudely.

The Princess Rhea, etc., who traces her descent from the nobility of Spain, had averred previously that "Boston is too sleepy. Boston snores." She made no such criticism today.

It was at the Morrison home that the Princess had hired as "accommodating" cook. When the house was reopened after Summer vacation several thousand dollars' worth of furnishings were missing. That brought inspectors investigating. The Princess was questioned with others. Her trunk was searched but with no result.

AT PARKER HOUSE.

Today, however, the inspectors took the Princess on the hotel complaints. In the Parker House instance, it is alleged she put up there September 26 to October 2 last year, ran up a bill of $50, gave a $78 check in payment and received $28 change. The check, on the Pacific Bank, New York, is said to have come back, marked "No funds."

In Boston, it is said, she was a dancing pupil of Alexis Kosloff.

Father, Son and Girl in Love Triangle

Newton Youth Charges Dad Fell for Girl's Love Charms

PRINCIPALS IN NEWTON LOVE TANGLE

There is one decidedly peeved young man in Newton. He is John Barthelmes, shown in the upper picture with his former sweetheart, Miss May Watson. Miss Watson made love, the son claims, to his father, George Barthelmes, and "the old man" fell for it and married the girl. Now the father of the boy and the girl are on their honeymoon, giving the son the merry ha ha. The other picture is of the new home the couple will occupy on their return from their wedding trip.

BOY SAYS FATHER STOLE GIRL

Newton Youth Also Accused of Stealing Liberty Bonds by Honeymooning Parent

The clumsy turtle often defeats the speedy hare, but it is seldom that age triumphs over youth in the game of love.

But—John Barthelmes of No. 11 West street, Newton, stands up today and tells the world that old age is very likely to put one over on youth any day. Old age in his case is his sixty-five-year-old father, George F. Barthelmes.

George stepped in when his son was about to wed Miss May Watson of Cambridge, and married her himself.

ON HONEYMOON.

Today George and his youthful bride of some twenty-nine Summers are honeymooning at Lake Winnepesaukee. While the newlyweds are laughing up their sleeves, John is hard at work in the city of Newton, trying to forget his unhappy adventure in love.

John is a veteran of the World War. He came back from France with a medal, an honorable discharge, a steel helmet and a mustache. He shaved off the mustache and met Miss Watson. Immediately love stirred within his heart and he and Miss Watson settled the matter by deciding on matrimony. John was happy.

Then, according to John, his father stepped into the picture and he gradually faded out. John is a hard worker. His father has considerable money and can devote more time to lovemaking. John says he felt himself slipping for some time, but hoped "to beat the old man out in the end."

NEW LOVE NEST.

John went to work Thursday as usual. His father smiled as he went out the door. Then he began to speed, according to John. He stripped the house of things he needed and carried them to a new "love nest," at No. 21 Bailey place, Newtonville. There he has purchased a house for himself and young bride.

After the preliminary arrangements had been completed George sat down and waited for his bride to arrive from Cambridge. She was scheduled to come at 11 o'clock in the morning. The hours passed and he feared that perhaps his son had "put one over on the old man." Then 3 o'clock arrived, the bride appeared. She had been shopping. The marriage was performed and the old man and his young wife betook themselves to the new home at Bailey place. There they inspected the new quarters, the bride placed the stamp of approval on them and then they locked up and left for New Hampshire for the honeymoon.

JOHN PEEVED.

John, the jilted son and lover, is sore today, [illegible] makes no bones about it. He even intimates that the bride "made love to the old man and he fell for it."

In addition to stealing his sweetheart, John's father told the police that two of his Liberty bonds had disappeared. He also told the police that he thought John knew something about them. This John denies heatedly.

The missing bonds did not disturb the aged groom, [illegible] according to friends and he was [illegible] as he led his bride to the altar. The smiles broadened as he boarded the train for the White Mountains—victor in the game of love.

MAYOR GREETS BUSTER BROWN AND TIGE

The original Buster Brown and his dog Tige were guests of Mayor Curley this noon at City Hall.

After a reception that lasted half an hour the Mayor presented Buster a key to the city.

Tige seemed to enjoy the ovation as much as his master did. Only this Tige is Tige Jr., Buster having had him only for four years. Buster, when the photographers were ready to snap the group on the front steps of City Hall spoke to Tige, and the latter at once stood up, with pipe in mouth and cap cocked to one side and looked his prettiest.

TOURING NEW ENGLAND.

Buster is on a tour of New England. He has been in every city in the United States. He was dressed in a red Buster Brown suit, black stockings and tan shoes. He makes his home in St. Louis and travels about 70,000 miles each year.

He was accompanied by Ed A. Miles, representing the Buster Brown Shoe; Thomas O'Rourke, shoe buyer, and P. F. Terrill, publicity manager, both of Houghton & Dutton Company.

MAYOR PRESENTS KEY.

In presenting the key of the city to Buster, Mayor Curley said, "This key will open for you the hospitality and freedom of the city any time that you wish to enter our gates."

In reply Buster gave the Mayor several souvenirs, and asked the Mayor if he had any children at home. The Mayor replied that he had six, and Buster promised to bring him some more, one for each of the children, so as to keep harmony in the Curley homestead.

DRY PARTY URGES VOTES FOR LEWIS

An appeal to "dry" advocates of both parties to vote for John B. Lewis for Governor and John [illegible] Nichols for United States Senator as a protest against the alleged nullification policy of the Republican and Democratic parties was issued today by the Prohibition State Committee. The committee points out that the Republicans dodged the issue by refusing to adopt a plank calling for legislation for the State enforcement of prohibition and that the Democratic party "extended a cordial welcome to the restored saloon" under the guise of a beer and light wines amendment.

DANFORTH WANTED; HIS FATHER IS DEAD

If you know a man named Danforth, an electrician and ex-serviceman, whose father was A. C. Danforth of Chicago, tell him to get in touch with Chief Inspector John R. McGarr at police headquarters. He is not "wanted" for any crime, but the body of his father, who just died, and a considerable amount of property are held by the Chicago police until the son can be located, according to word received by the Boston police today. The son's first name is not known, but he is believed to be in Boston and is about 25 years old.

WEEK-OLD BABY BOY FOUND BY POSTMAN

New York, Oct. 6.—Benjamin Gold, a postman, delivering mail to a two family Brooklyn house today was unsuccessful in delivering an unaddressed package he found on the porch. Neither family would accept, so Gold opened it and found a smiling week-old baby boy. The infant was taken to King's County Hospital.

GIRLS TELL OF BRIGHT LIGHT ADVENTURE

Nicholas Luongo

And so the trio, financed by $200 which Luongo had saved, started for New York and the bright lights. For three days the parents of the girls hunted for them in vain. Finally the police located them in Jersey City.

Luongo was arrested on a statutory charge. Today in the Chelsea Court the girls told their story.

"Nickie," as they called Luongo, had been urging them for several weeks to take the trip. When they finally consented, he met them as they were going home from school and took them to South Station in a taxi cab. They stopped at Providence and took a boat for New York. They rollicked along Broadway as Luongo squandered his savings. Then they went to Jersey City.

In order to make the girls seem older, Luongo bought some clothes for them. "He told everybody I was his wife," said Carmela.

The case was transferred to the juvenile court for disposition.

Claiming that her husband has been annoying her since she filed suit for divorce against him several months ago, Mrs. Mary O'Brien Pezalt of Hunnewell street, Wellesley, has requested that he be restrained from bothering her in the future.

The husband is Herman Pezalt, Boston business man.

Mrs. Pezalt, in the divorce action, is seeking the custody of her two children. She avers that hubby has been accosting her on street cars of late, and she does not want any further annoyances from him.

RAIN COMING TO BREAK LONG DROUGHT

Washington, Oct. 6. — Marked changes in atmospheric pressures across the country east of the Mississippi upset the dope in the Weather Bureau today, and it is now predicted that showers generally in the Eastern States will soon break the long drought that has gripped most of the country.

Weather Bureau officials were taken with surprise completely, they said, when the sudden change was [illegible]. Disturbances which will [illegible] the parched countryside with refreshing showers originated in northern Canada, it was explained, where there are few weather observation stations. Consequently the [illegible] here had no means of being warned beforehand.

Steps are being planned to establish on the shores of Baffin Bay, 40 degrees north of the northernmost [illegible] station in Canada, a weather station and wireless plant [illegible] the conditions or just such [illegible] as would allow American observers [illegible] sudden changes.

Hails the "Green" as Boon to Eyes

ESPECIALLY desirable for city dwellers, in the opinion of F. E. Birmingham, optometrist, at No. 480 Washington street.

He was speaking of the Green Edition of the Boston American. He likes the color. "A comfortable, natural [illegible] one," he says. He adds

F. E. BIRMINGHAM.

"Men accustomed to outdoor life have exceptionally keen eyesight. At advanced age their vision is better than that of many city bred young people. This is undoubtedly due to the fact that the colors they look at are the restful tints best suited not to strain the eye. Green harmonizes well, so we can figure the more the city dweller, who sees so little of Nature's green, can look at this color, the better for his sight. The American's Green sheets are a boon to the public."

TOTH SAILS; GIVES UP SWIM TRIALS

James Snow, treasurer of the Charles Toth Swimming Fund, received a cable today from the Boston brownie stating that he has abandoned his attempt to swim the English Channel.

The cable read: "Sailing on the President Harding. Will be home on October 14. CHARLES TOTH."

Toth made two attempts to swim the Channel. Both times he came within four miles of reaching the French shore. Poor weather and lack of food were two of the reasons advanced by Toth for his failure to [illegible] the swim.

Another cable which has never been explained is the one in which the Boston man said he was forced to give up on account of interference. Whether the interference was tidal or otherwise is not known.

COLLIER PLANS TO WRITE MELODRAMA

By FRED J. McISAAC.

When the Music Box Revue was built for the new Music Box Theatre it was never expected that it would go on the road. New scenes were [illegible] new settings constructed [illegible] of the show without [illegible] thinking much about it and then they discovered that they had the biggest production that ever tried to tour when they got ready to move to Boston.

Willie Collier.

Willie Collier wandered into the Music Box on Sunday and saw [illegible] ready for shipment [illegible] crates, vast boxes, enormous packages, but mostly crates.

SORRY FOR STAGE HANDS.

"This may not be the best show but it is certainly the cratest show on earth," remarked Collier, and was [illegible] by the stage hands' [illegible] atrocious pun.

"I was never sorry for stage hands before," said Willie, "until I saw them trying to get our show together at the Colonial last Monday. You never saw so many stage hands work so hard in your life. It was a race against time and we were not really ready [illegible] ring the curtain up Monday night and took a chance.

"When [illegible] stage hands [illegible]," said Willie, "I want to be near so I [illegible] Sam Harris when he faints. I wouldn't own this show for anything. But if I did the first thing I would do would be to fire me. I get too much salary."

PUBLIC GETTING WISE.

"How did you like my rehearsal skit, 'Nothing but Cuts'?"

"I thought it was terribly funny."

"Thanks. I did that for a Lambs show. I was really afraid at first to put it in front of the general public because you have to be pretty sophisticated to get the gags.

"I asked George [illegible] about it and he said 'Do it. It'll register a hundred per cent.'

"It's really wonderful how wise the public [illegible] getting about the show business. In the old days you might have a friend who [illegible] shows. [illegible] come to see your show. He would meet you afterwards and [illegible]

"'I knew you the [illegible] you came on.'

"Now the same fellow would say, 'Do you know, Willie, you ought to [illegible] that spot on your second [illegible] and a [illegible] less grease paint around the eyes would throw [illegible] into better relief.' Where do they get that? That's what I want to know. Too many [illegible] the theatre. That's what [illegible] the public so wise."

TO WRITE MELODRAMA.

What are you planning to do in the way of [illegible]

"I'm going to write one of those melodramas like 'The Cat and the Canary' and 'The Monster.' I'm [illegible] going to [illegible] I'd die [illegible] of those regular melodrama directors without any sense of humor and let them do it. I won't have anything to do with the show except count the money."

Where would we be anyway if it weren't for advertising?

WHAT a lot of time advertising saves us! We need something. We see it advertised. And we go straight from where we are now to where the article is sold.

Have you ever gone around from place to place seeking for something which you knew existed but which nobody else seemed to know anything about, not even the storekeepers?

You have wasted an hour, maybe several hours, possibly half a day. You have worn out your patience, and before the end of the quest probably you began to figure that the thing which you sought was not, after all, so good as you thought it was, otherwise other people besides yourself would know something about it.

The manufacturer who advertises, invests his money, therefore, not alone to tell of the merits of his goods but to save you time. The manufacturer who is willing to pay for advertising space in newspapers or magazines in order to point out to you where his merchandise is sold, so that you may get there quicker and buy it easier, is not going to skimp or cheat in manufacturing it.

After going to all the trouble and expense of telling you just where you may find it, he is going to see to it that when you do buy it, it is good enough so that you will buy it again.

And in making up your mind about merchandise which is advertised, consider this last thought—the manufacturer can well afford to make it as good as it can be made because one sale means hundreds, even thousands of others following naturally and costing him nothing extra.

JACK DEMPSEY IS TO HIT TRAIL FOR BOSTON TONIGHT

CHAMPION READY FOR GO WITH THOMPSON

By JACK CONWAY.

Jack Kearns wires from New York that Jack Dempsey will leave for Boston tonight on the midnight. He will arrive here tomorrow morning and will satisfy his hunger at the Copley Plaza, where he will stop while in this city.

Jack Kearns

"Tiger Jack," of course, is coming here for the express purpose of battling Jack Thompson in a four-round exhibition at the Faneuil Club's show at Mechanics Building tomorrow night. Thompson has been in this city for several days and has an idea he will hand Dempsey all he can handle.

A big crowd is expected to be on hand to see Dempsey in action. The sensational victory of Battling Siki over Georges Carpentier has given new interest to the heavyweight division.

There will also be four ten-round bouts.

George Robinson, Cambridge [illegible], will battle Jack McLean in the semi-final.

Willie Gradwell will quarter with Young Tansey.

Freddy Mason will [illegible] Frankie Ryan.

Tom Cotter will try to kayo Pat McNary.

Arena A. C. Looks for Capacity Crowd Monday

The Arena A. C. is prepared to handle a capacity crowd when Eddie Shevlin, New England welterweight champion, and Dave Shade of [illegible] form a team in the feature bout of ten rounds at the Boston Arena Monday night.

It is the most important welterweight battle that has been staged since Britton defended his championship against Shade at Madison Square Garden last Winter.

The winner of Monday night's quarrel will be [illegible] as the logical opponent for Britton.

It is no easy task to dope the winner of this bout. Some of the so-called wise betting men are given ten to eight with Shade the favorite. These odds are ridiculous. This bout is an even money affair if there ever was such a thing.

Shade has been beaten by [illegible] [illegible] even by [illegible] of [illegible] and Al Norton.

Of course Dave [illegible] than Shevlin. He is also [illegible] than the New England [illegible]. But he does not know as much about boxing as Dartmouth [illegible]. Neither does he display as much aggressiveness.

You also want to remember that Shevlin always has a habit of coming through and figuring at his best when he goes to the post on the short end of the betting.

[illegible]

Three Eight-Rounders on the Preliminary Card

There will also be three eight-round bouts. Johnny Morello of the North End will meet Willie Garo of the same district. [illegible] Fox of Worcester was [illegible] boxing [illegible] of Providence, while [illegible] of New York will [illegible] with Mike Fallon of St. Paul. [illegible] is under the management of Leo Flynn, who says his protégé is the hardest hitting welterweight in the country. And he bars none of the top-notchers either.

Malone and Karr Due in Boston on Sunday

Jack Malone and [illegible], who [illegible] the Atlas A. A. show at Mechanics Building Tuesday night, are due to arrive in Boston Sunday.

The Middle West will await the result of [illegible] with [illegible] interest.

Malone and Karr have already met twice. And on each occasion, Malone [illegible]. There will be quite a [illegible] of fans who will [illegible] to Mechanics Building Tuesday night, with the expectation of seeing Malone walloped.

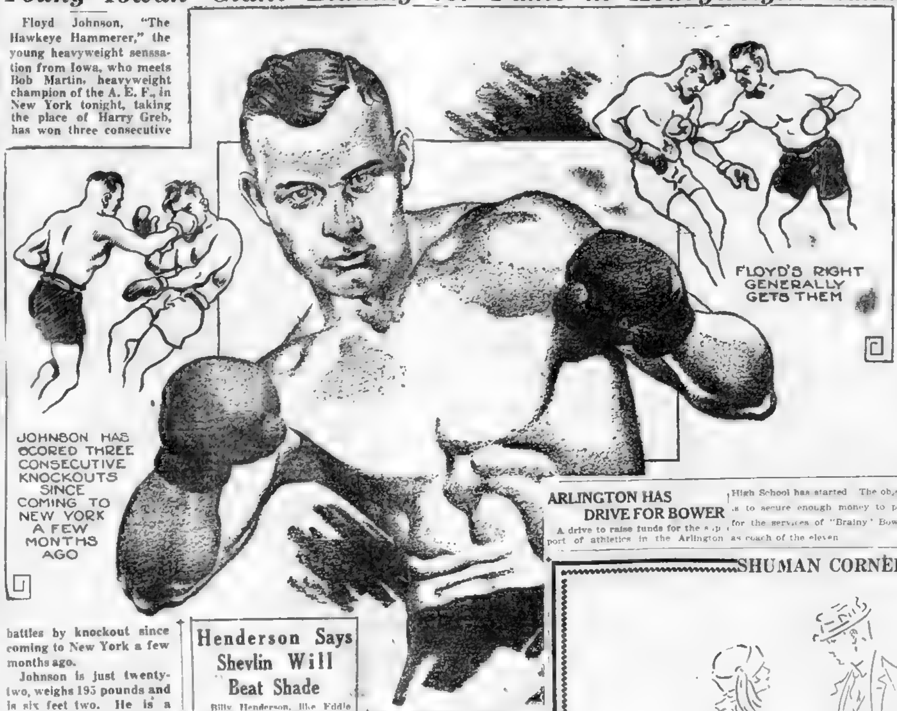
FOOTBALL RALLY IS HELD AT B. U.

Students of the College of Liberal Arts and the College of Business Administration of Boston University held a joint football rally in preparation for the game with [illegible] tomorrow [illegible] [illegible]. There [illegible] music by the R. O. T. C. band, singing led by Ralph Brown, a speech by Captain Toony, and cheering led by Franklin Woodward, varsity cheer leader.

Young Iowan Giant Bidding for Fame in Heavyweight Ranks

Floyd Johnson, "The Hawkeye Hammerer," the young heavyweight senssation from Iowa, who meets Bob Martin, heavyweight champion of the A. E. F., in New York tonight, taking the place of Harry Greb, has won three consecutive battles by knockout since coming to New York a few months ago.

Johnson is just twenty-two, weighs 195 pounds and is six feet two. He is a product fo th efour-round game at San Francisco, in which Jack Dempsey made his first real reputation. Johnson was developed by Alex Greggains, the old-time middleweight, and turned over to Charley Cook, the New York manager.



JOHNSON HAS SCORED THREE CONSECUTIVE KNOCKOUTS SINCE COMING TO NEW YORK A FEW MONTHS AGO
FLOYD'S RIGHT GENERALLY GETS THEM

JOHNSON BATTLFS MARTIN

Floyd Johnson of Iowa and Bob Martin, the A. E. F. champion, meet tonight in a fifteen-round bout at Madison Square Garden, New York. The contest will take the place of the Greb-Martin contest scheduled for tonight, but owing to the ruling of Chairman Muldoon of the Boxing Commission that Greb must meet Tommy Wilson first before meeting anyone else, the new match was made.

Charley Cook, manager of Floyd Johnson, readily accepted the terms of the Garden management to meet Martin, being anxious to show the Iowan in the Garden against an opponent that will give him a thorough tryout.

Johnson has won five battles since coming East and is being touted as the next heavyweight champion.

Martin has been coming along in good style again since his illness.

His last bout in New York was against Frank Moran, whom he stopped in an open-air show last year.

Mohawks Want Games

The Mohawk A. A. would like to arrange games with any 115-120-pound team in Greater Boston for Saturdays or Sundays. Write to David Johnstone, No. 52 Vinal avenue, Somerville, or call Somerville 4314-W.

ARLINGTON HAS DRIVE FOR BOWER

A drive to raise funds for the support of athletics in the Arlington High School has started. The object is to secure enough money to pay for the services of "Brainy" Bower as coach of the eleven.

Henderson Says Shevlin Will Beat Shade

Billy Henderson, like Eddie Shevlin, doesn't talk merely so as to hear the echo of his own voice. It is, therefore, of interest when Henderson vouches an opinion on a ring affair.

"I figure Shevlin will defeat Dave Shade Monday night at the Arena," said Henderson today. "Eddie will not permit Shade to set the pace. He will keep on top of his opponent at all times. It will be a repetition of the Shevlin-Ward bout. Class and a stout heart will win.

"I am usually very cautious about naming a winner, but I don't hesitate in stating that it will be curtains for Shade."

PARKER IN BOUT WITH HAMLIN

Charley Parker, South End boxing king, will try to knock Louie Hamlin out of the picture at the Nameaug A. A. of Salem tonight. Parker has won his last four starts and is eager to keep on victory trail.

Louie Hamlin

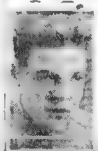
Hamlin has also been winning regularly. He recently smashed his way to a [illegible] over [illegible] Williams and figures he will also dispose of Parker.

It looks like a bang-up quarrel.

There will also be a strong prelim card.

FRUZETTI MEETS LEE TONIGHT

Jimmy Fruzetti, New England lightweight champion, will risk his title when he battles Ted Lee in a ten-round bout at Worcester tonight. It will be Fruzetti's first bout since he joined Billy Henderson's stable of battlers.



Jimmy Fruzetti

The Brockton youth is in perfect condition and will try to score a decisive victory.

KOTSONARUS IS WINNER OVER NOORY

George Kotsonarus captured victory in two straight falls from Ahmed Noory, champion of the Turkish army.

It was the third test for the gritty Greek, who proved conclusively his right to a match with the best light heavyweight available. After the match he issued a challenge to any wrestler in the world.

The son of Turkey gave a very satisfactory account of himself and if last night's performance is not a flash in the pan, he should take part in many slashing bouts during the Winter season.

Kotsonarus secured his first fall in 40 minutes 30 seconds with a head scissors and wristlock. Up to the fall, it was a very even bout with a very slight shade in favor of the Greek.

After having Kotsonarus on the flat of his back, Noory allowed his prey to get loose and shortly after was pinned for the second fall. It was a pretty fall, coming after a body lift, and was in 30 minutes 30 seconds.

Tommy Record scored over Alex Sandstrum after 26 minutes of fast wrestling. Louis Andrews captured the opening mauling match from Frank Santel in 16 minutes 30 seconds.

An all-star show will be held at Arena next Thursday. Stanley Zbyszko vs. Ivan Lenow; George Kotsonarus vs. John Pesak, and Joe Perrelli vs. Fred Lurich are on the program.

Sam Smith was referee.

S. R. O. OUTLOOK FOR THE HARVARD-HOLY CROSS GAME

BIG JAM AT STADIUM WHEN RIVALS CLASH

By CHARLES E. PARKER

The World's Series may be gripping New England like Bill Hart grips that low-down Greaser who pinched the papers from our little Nell, but you won't be able to prove it by any falling-off in football attendance at our college athletic fields tomorrow afternoon.

Indications point to a 40,000 crowd at the Harvard Stadium, where the Crimson engages Holy Cross; the same little fellows say there'll be nearly that number at the Yale Bowl where the Elis face North Carolina, and when you add to those throngs the thousands who will look in on the Boston College-Boston University clash at Braves Field, the Dartmouth-Maine game at Hanover, the Brown-Colby set-to at Providence, the Tufts-Bates meeting at Lewiston, the Middlebury-Williams battle at Middlebury, the Vermont-Springfield [illegible] at Burlington, the New Hampshire-Norwich tourney at Durham, the Wesleyan-Bowdoin fracus at Middletown and the Worcester Tech-Trinity skirmish at Worcester—when you add these throngs to those thousands, we repeat—you'll have [illegible] a grand total that will make the world's series' gathering of [illegible] appear a mere handful. And that without going outside of New England.

For so early in the gridiron season New England is particularly blessed in [illegible] attractions.

For two years [illegible] has provided one of the [illegible] games of the Harvard [illegible] season [illegible] and [illegible] scores of [illegible] we do not [illegible] in Harvard [illegible] tomorrow [illegible] we expect to [illegible] tended [illegible]

Brown is favored over Colby. Tufts is conceded the edge on Bates. Vermont [illegible] and Bowdoin should beat Wesleyan in the remaining New England contests.

TUFTS TO PLAY LEWISTON ELEVEN

The Tufts Varsity football team will leave for Lewiston, Me., this afternoon [illegible] will tackle Bates [illegible] This will be the second [illegible] Eddie Casey boys ar[illegible] [illegible] expected at Medford [illegible] team will improve [illegible] of last week when [illegible] at Aggies [illegible]

The [illegible] revealed a fast hard [illegible] and a line in which [illegible] was hampered by [illegible] The work of the [illegible] and Barrett, was especially [illegible]

[illegible] was a substitute tackle on last year's team but got into enough games to win his letter. [illegible] graduation of [illegible] position of right tackle open and [illegible] stepped into the breach effectively. He is a big strong lad with lots of experience.

He began his football at Everett High under the coaching of Frank Keaney, the present Rhode Island State mentor. As a freshman two years ago he came under the instruction of Dr. Wescott. Now under the watchful eye of Coach Casey he bids fair to rank with the best of college tackles.

On the other side of the line Red Barrett has been a tower of strength for two years. His smashing play has not only made him first choice at tackle but has won him a place in the heart of every Tufts student. Red's forte is blocking kicks and he has been responsible for more than one Tufts score.

Hard scrimmaging this week has [illegible] the most glaring of the weaknesses disclosed in the Connecticut game. Only a few new plays have been given the team as Coach Casey is [illegible] anxious that the boys master the fundamentals of team play before learning any intricate system of attack. A couple of forward pass plays to go with the line attack shown against the Aggies is deemed enough for this time of year.

Coach Casey will take nineteen men to Lewiston. Al Thompson will go along as first utility man. Naturally [illegible] he has been shifted from the end of the line to the center [illegible] to both tackle and guard positions. Al played an excellent game [illegible] in the line and will surely see service against Bates.

Other alternates are Chandonett, Rice, Katarri.

The first team will line up as follows: Machia, Barrett, Russo, E. Thompson, Share, Tyler, Cook, Eitelman, Hughes, Terrill and Galvariski.

CONCORD TO PLAY BROWNE & NICHOLS

Concord High, captained by Russell [illegible] will play Browne & Nichols [illegible] team Saturday morning in Cambridge instead of in the afternoon, as originally booked.

Washington, Oct. 6.—President Harding is living up to his title "first fan of the land," by following every play of the World's Championship Series between the Yankees and Giants.

A private wire into the White House executive office from the Polo grounds ticks off even the balls and strikes. Each play is recorded on a blank and sent over to the President while another operator keeps the score card.

The President, always an American League fan, is rooting for the Yankees. He recently told Captain Bancroft of the Giants that he believes the Yanks would win because of their pitching staff "unless Nehf and Barnes are in the form they were during the last World's Series.

This Day in History—October 6, 1922

THIS is the anniversary of the day, in 1862, when General McClellan, in command of the Union forces, was ordered to cross the Potomac. McClellan's failure to secure any decisive victory against Lee resulted in his removal.

The story opens with an account of the Caskoden family, one of whom, Edwin—who tells the story of Princess Mary Tudor and Charles Brandon—holds a place at the court of Henry VIII. News of a terrible duel reaches the King. Of four combatants, only two come out alive, one so horribly disfigured that he might better have been killed. The survivor, Charles Brandon, is much talked about for his heroism. He appears at a tourney at Westminster. Mary begs the King to tell her his name. He refuses. Brandon meets Caskoden in London and they become friends. Brandon tells him his hopes and plans.

I FEAR I tried to convey the impression that it was her exalted rank only which made her look unfavorably upon my passion, and suppressed the fact that she had laughed at me good humoredly and put me off as she would have thrust a poodle from her lap. The truth is, she had always been kind and courteous to me, and had admitted me to a degree of intimacy much greater than I deserved.

[illegible] she [illegible]

I am [illegible]

[illegible] I was a [illegible] with every [illegible] cared [illegible]

I [illegible] between [illegible] but [illegible] every other man who came within the circle of [illegible] I lost my head and [illegible] made a great[er] fool of myself than I [illegible] a good deal for that [illegible] my life God knows.

I knew vaguely but did not fairly realize how utterly beyond my [illegible] way she was until [illegible] the [illegible] gates of my pas[sion] [illegible] and saw her [illegible] to check the com[illegible]. Then came a look of [illegible] dignity followed by a [illegible]k softening glance.

"Leave me one friend. I pray [you], Edwin. I value you too highly [illegible] of those fools who feel or pretend to feel. I care not [illegible] such preference for [illegible]

[illegible] a woman's love, [illegible] but let us be good friends. I [illegible] the pair [illegible] it would be no different were we both of the same degree, even [illegible] I could not feel toward you as you think you wish, but I can be your friend, and will promise to be that always, if you will promise never again to speak of this to me."

I promised solemnly and have always kept my word, as this true gracious woman, so full of faults and beauties, virtues and failings, has ever since that day and moment, kept hers. It seemed that my love or what I supposed was love left my heart at once frozen in the cold glint of her eyes as she smiled upon my first avowal, somewhat as disease may leave the sickened body upon a great shock. And in its place came the restful flame of a friend's love with no [illegible] without burning. But the [illegible] There is nothing in life worth having compared with [illegible] despairs and agonies [illegible] is there?

"Now if you must love somebody," continued the princess, "there is Lady Jane [illegible] who is beautiful and good and [illegible] you [illegible] but here the lady [illegible] ran out from behind the [illegible] where I believe, she had [illegible] to [illegible] her mistress [illegible] her.

[illegible] one word she says, Sir Edwin," cried Lady [Jane] [illegible] I never will like [illegible]

[illegible] less love is to love elsewhere, and Jane as she stood there, so petite, so blushing and so fair, struck me as quite the most pleasing antidote I could possibly find. [illegible]

It was a happy thought for me, one of those which come to a man now and then, and for which he thanks his wits in every hour of his life after.

But the winning of Jane was not so easy a matter as my vanity had prompted me to think. I started with a handicap, since Jane had heard my declaration to Mary and I had to undo all that before I could do anything else. Try the [illegible] a [illegible] if you think it a simple easy undertaking.

I began to fear I should need another antidote long before I heard her sweet [illegible] "yes." I do not believe how [illegible] in the whole world an [illegible] to my love for Jane. You see I tell you frankly that I was [illegible] so far as [illegible] and I are concerned for the purpose of holding you in suspense.

I have started out to tell you [illegible] a very important person [illegible]

In the course of my talk with Brandon I had as I [illegible] [illegible] as little less to my discredit than the [illegible] truth [illegible]

I had [illegible] perhaps a year since [illegible] with Mary and I had [illegible] trying to [illegible] a word I had said to her in earnest and that I was very earnest in [illegible] a great deal and the best I could hope was that she held me on probation.

On the evening of the day Mary came home to Greenwich Brandon asked "Who and what on earth is this wonderful Mary I [illegible] about it: I hear nothing but 'Mary is coming! Mary is coming! Mary! Mary!' from morning until night. They say Buckingham is beside himself for love of her. He has a wife at home, if I am right, and is old enough to be her father. Is he not?" I assented, and Brandon continued: "A man who will make such a fool of himself about a woman is woefully weak. The men of the court must be poor creatures."

He had much to learn about the power of womanhood. There is nothing on earth, but you know as much as I do.

"Wait till you see her," I answered, "and you will be one of them also. I [illegible] you by giving you one hour with her to be hopelessly in love. With an ordinary man it takes one-sixtieth of that time, so you see I pay a compliment to your strength of mind."

"Nonsense!" broke in Brandon. "Do you think I left all my wits [illegible] Why, man, she is the sister of the king and is [illegible] kings and emperors. [illegible] with a twinkling star. Then besides, [illegible] think me a fool, a poor, en[illegible] [illegible] if you would [illegible]

We [illegible] at this sort of talk which was a little in advance of [illegible] I was a [illegible] and to be [illegible]

[illegible] great [illegible] of sympathy between [Brandon] and myself was a [illegible] concerning [illegible] as to the [illegible] of [illegible] We believed that these things would yet come, in spite of kingcraft and priestcraft [illegible] our pet theories to ourselves that is, be [illegible]

Man and Maid

by Elinor Glyn

MISS SHARP'S firm writing, more like a man's than a woman's, looked a little shaky at the end. Was she crying perhaps when she wrote the letter—the poor little girl. What will the death mean to her eventually? Will the necessity to work be lessened?

[illegible] was [illegible]

But [illegible]

[illegible] bending to button than to me.

The weather has changed suddenly, the wind is sighing, and I know that the summer is over—I shall have the sitting-room fire lighted and everything as comfortable as I can when she does turn up and I shall have to stay here and then since I cannot communicate with her in any way. [illegible] as to her address [illegible] away, I [illegible]

A week has passed.

[illegible] I was [illegible] on Thursday morning. I [illegible] it extremely. As yet the only advance I have made is that I can control most of the outward demonstrations of my perturbations, but not

What Has Gone Before

Sir Nicholas Thormonde, a wealthy Englishman, wounded and blinded in one eye in action, starts writing his diary in Paris while the war is still on. He is sick of life. The war has robbed it of all that a young man can find of joy. He tries to amuse himself in the company of several women friends, who he feels, seek his company for his money and not for the love he gives. He starts to write a book and hires a typist, Miss Sharp. He falls in love with her and serves notice on the "Fluffies." She refuses to give him her address.

the [illegible] I was [illegible] the door opened and she came. Just the scrap of a creature in dead black. Although there was no crepe, one could see that the garments were French trappings of woe, that is, she had a veil hanging from her simple small hat. I felt that she had had to buy these things for the funeral and probably could not afford a second set of more dowdy ones for her working clothes, so that there was that indescribable air of elegance about her appearance which had shown in Bois that Sunday. The black was supremely becoming to her transparent white skin, and seemed to set off the bright bronze brown of her hair, the [illegible] little curls that had slipped out beside her ears; but the yellow horn spectacles were as uncompromising as ever. I could not see whether her eyes were sad or no—her mouth was firm as usual.

"I want to tell you of my sympathy," I said immediately. "I was so sorry not to know your address that I might have expressed it to you before—I would have wished to send you some flowers."

"Thank you," was all she answered—but her voice trembled a little.

"It was so stupid of me not to have asked you for your address before—you must have thought it was so careless and unsympathetic."

"Oh! no"—

"Won't you give it to me now that I may know in the future?"

"We are going to move—it would be useless—it is not decided where we go yet."

I knew I dared not insist.

"Is there some place where I could be certain of a message [illegible] to the [illegible] and not out here [illegible] found you."

She was silent for a moment. I could see she was in a tremor.

"I [illegible] an awful bore but I had said it all quite naturally as a [illegible] would who was quite unaware that there could be any [illegible] to give the information and I [illegible] it was better [illegible] not to [illegible] suspicions.

After a second or two she gave the [illegible] of a stationer's shop in the Avenue Mozart.

"I pass there every day," she said.

I thanked her.

"[illegible] to your work—I can't bear to think that perhaps you would have wished to remain at home now."

"No, it does not matter"—There was an infinite weariness in her tone—a [illegible] I had [illegible]

"Oh I [illegible] anxious and so sorry. I saw you in the [illegible] two Sundays ago in the thunder storm, and I tried to get near the path I thought you would cross to offer you the carriage to return in, but I missed you—perhaps your little brother caught cold then?"

There was a sob in her voice—

"Yes—will you—would you mind if we just did not speak of anything, but began work."

"Forgive me—I only want you to know that I'm so awfully sorry—and Oh, if there was anything in the world I could do for you—would you not let me?"

"I appreciate your wish—it is kind of you—but there is nothing. You were going to hear the last chapter over again. Here is the old one—I will take off my hat while you look at it," and she handed it to me.

Of course I could not say anything more—I had had a big bunch of violets put on the table where she types, in Burton's room adjoining—they were the first forced ones which could be got in Paris—and I had slipped a card by them with just "my sympathy" on it.

When she came back to the room hatless her [illegible] were right [illegible] and all she said was [illegible] and then I saw a [illegible] streak of wet trickle from under [illegible] born rims. I have never [illegible] such a temptation in my [illegible] out my arms and cry "Darling one let me comfort you." [illegible] clasped close to me [illegible] to touch her [illegible] how that I felt profoundly for her grief.

"Miss Sharp," I did [illegible] out "I am not saying anything because I know you don't want me to, but it is not because I [illegible] feel—I'm—I'm [illegible] May not I perhaps send some roses to your home [illegible] there is someone there who would like them—flowers are such jolly things!" Then I felt the awfully ill chosen word "jolly" was—but I could not alter it.

I believe that [illegible] my [illegible] was [illegible] to offer comfort [illegible] note came into her voice.

"I'll take the violets with me if you will let me," she said. "Please don't trouble about anything more—and do let us begin work."

So we started upon the Chapter.

Her hands were not so red, I noticed. I am becoming sensitive to what is called "atmosphere," I suppose, for I feel [illegible] in the room, were [illegible] —that ambience of serenity did not surround Alathea and keep me unconsciously in awe of her as it always has before.

I must confess that there was enough mischief in my mind to make this answer just verge on the malicious. I can't help being on the woman's side of most arguments or situations. Ailing Children Get Well on Syrup Pepsin

A small dose at bedtime brings relief and laughter by morning

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

HOSPITAL and doctor's records prove that 75 per cent of human illness has its origin in the intestinal canal, complicated with what is commonly called constipation. Realizing what that figure means, mothers should contrive methods of handling their children while they still control them that will prevent these future dangers. Teach children regularity of bowel movement, and be especially watchful of young girls. Insist on two passages a day until the age of 18, when one is usually sufficient. Give plenty of oranges and apples, plenty of butter because it lubricates the intestines, and encourage the drinking of water.

If you detect restlessness, belching, gas or wind on the stomach, sleeplessness, or lack of appetite, examine the tongue and you will find it coated, accompanied by unpleasant breath. The child is bilious, constipated. According to age, give from one-half to a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which children never object to taking as they like the taste. By morning the youngster will be well again. Likewise if the nostrils are stuffed up or there is persistent sneezing, a dose of Syrup Pepsin will break up the fever and cold.

Mrs. Geo. N. Colson of Bernard, Me., keeps her family well in that way, and Mrs. Ida A. Burkett of Carroll, La., who has been using Syrup Pepsin for a dozen years, has raised her three children on it. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. The formula, however, is on every package. Druggists have sold it with satisfaction to their customers for over 30 years, and it is now the largest selling family laxative in the world. Buy a bottle today. It will last you for months, and the cost is only about a cent a dose.

TOO MUCH MEAT HURTS KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Jad Salts to Flush Kidneys if you Overeat

Eating too much meat may produce kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so that it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

HE didn't know I had left the shipping office, so I walked down there, waiting till the silver gray sedan rounded the corner.

"I'm glad for that, anyway, Mary," he said after a long silence. "Now, heart's delight, where do we go? I have something for you and you have to take it. If you won't let me make you happy, this opal and someone else may, oh, sweetheart!"

He opened the box, turning his face from me as he did. There was a chain holding a stone as big as a quarter, a black opal that was a living pool of red-gold-purple flame—the most alluring, beautiful jewel I ever saw.

"I got it from an old miner in Alaska. I give it to you for the charm, not for the worth of it, Mary."

At the door he held my hand, pausing. . . . "Let me come and see you, Mary? Let me take you out. And remember this—before all else. I want to see you happy. If I could ever do anything to further that, it would be no pain, but the greatest joy to me. . . . Just tell me!"

"How have you been, Nell?" she asked in the ... bored tone ... wanting to have tea with you, but I've been so busy.

"And I'm rushed to death looking for materials for some Summer ... Tram and I are going ... Nell ... Teresa's patronage.

Little Evelyn, with her soft baby face, her nervous ways, must have felt herself slighted, for she burst into the conversation with a bright gossip item.

"Oh, say, Nell," she lisped, "did you know Jack is home? The poor boy's been awfully sick. Honestly, the doctors gave up hope for him."

"Yes, he was out to dinner the other night," Nell answered, turning at once to Teresa.

It seemed to me that they were baiting each other, and Nell was determined to come out victor.

Teresa and Evelyn went into a shop. Nell and I were going to the Golden Pheasant for lunch. Not till we were seated at the table did Nell speak, and then she burst out in hot indignation:

"The patronage of her. Do you know, Mary, that since I've been married and have as much as she has, and more, she doesn't care for me?"

"Look at this pin." Nell was wearing an exquisite diamond set in platinum carved with the deft artistry of wizard fingers.

The waitress set down the dishes. Still quivering with the excitement of meeting Teresa Brady, I spread the butter on a muffin, answering Nell in as calm a tone as I could muster.

Nell talked on. She was wound up with angry resentment. We were nearly finished when suddenly she put her hand on mine. In a quick breath came her excited whisper.

"Look, Mary. Straight across."

I followed her eyes. With a bound that seemed to tear it from me, my heart leaped, the hot blood pounded in my ears. I could only stare, clenching the table, trying to lower my eyes, but held, compelled to look at the face half turned from me at a table midway across the room. It was Pat.

Nell passed me the salt, though I didn't want it; poured out tea, though my cup was more than half full.

"We'll pass there and speak to him," she said softly, laughing. "So he will probably return the day after tomorrow. There's direct evidence for you. Let's go, Mary."

"No. I couldn't pass him. No, stay." And yet, even as in the beginning, the sight of that proud, glorious face, that nobly set head, drew me like music, like perfume. My heart seemed to spring from me, pulling itself at his feet.

All at once, as though I had called to him, he turned and his eyes were full on mine. As though there were no others in the place, we sat, holding each other with our eyes. Without shifting his glance, he pushed his chair from the table and stood up. My breath came in a fierce, eager pain. He was coming toward me.

"He's coming over! Mary, for pity sake, bow to him!" Nell, her face flushed with pleasure, was nodding gayly. I smiled, lowering my eyes, feeling my cheeks blanch, my blood tingling in a wild, uncontrollable nervousness.

He was at the table. Nell extended her hand, seizing his eagerly. "How are you, Pat? When did you get in? Oh, I'm glad to see you."

"Thanks, Nell, I'm fine. I just got in." Already he had turned to me, but I couldn't force myself to look at him. "How are you, Mary?" The soul of music, low, sad, uncertain, throbbed and swept me in a tumult of glad pain. He seemed half expecting that I would not answer.

"Oh, I'm very well," I heard myself saying in a cool, steadied tone. Not another word would come to me. Nell was sitting forward watching as though she would have pushed us together.

"Everything's fine, Pat," she said. "Funny thing we were just talking about you. Teresa and I met Ruth Morgan a few moments ago. She's going to give you a big homecoming party?"

"She is? Why the honor?"

"You're a credit to your friends, aren't you? She said you would be home the day after tomorrow."

With every word that Nell said, I wanted to shriek. It seemed to me Pat must perceive her purpose. He would think I had urged her to do this. He would suppose my heart was quivering in my hand for him: that I was jealous of Teresa Brady.

"She made a pretty good guess, didn't she? We were in New York at the same time. We met at dinner one night. How is Tram?"

"Come out to dinner and see for yourself, Pat. Name your own time."

"You won't have to ask me twice, Nell," but without setting any date he turned to me. "June is married, Mary?"

"Why, yes, quite a while ago—last October, in fact."

"And your mother—is she feeling better?" Instinctively I clasped my hands. Whenever any one asked me suddenly of ma, it rasped through me like a knife gouging into the secret chamber where I had buried my grief, piercing it, bringing it forth anew.

"Didn't you know, Pat? It was just before Christmas."

"Mary." He covered my hand. His was like ice. Emotion charged the silence between us.

"You don't think I knew, did you, Mary?" His cold fingers pressed on mine. "Did you? Oh, I'm sorry—for a good many things."

"I'd like to see you, Mary," he said in a careless tone.

"Oh, would you!" The calm indifference of that announcement amazed me.

"Yes, how is tonight?"

"I'm sorry, I won't be home tonight."

"Well, Saturday afternoon is a good time, is it, Mary?"

"We're not very lucky this time, it seems. Saturday was signed away last week."

"Well," his eyes were scanning my face. I felt their vivid scrutiny. "I guess I'll have to put in a bid early. If you're ever home, I'll ring you up."

"You got my telegram, did you, Pat?" I asked quietly.

I never saw a face grow white as though it had been drained of blood as his did. His eyes were hurt, bewitched as though he had received an incredible shock; as though I had risen up and struck him. Then his lips smiled, shot with scorn. "Oh, you did mean it." It was so softly spoken I scarcely caught the words. "Why yes," he said in a hard, cold voice. "Of course I got your telegram. . . .

"Well, good by."

Without another word he turned, went back to his table, picked up his hat and walked out with the men who were waiting for him.

Just as I might have expected. I picked up the cup and gulped down the cold tea, keeping it to my lips until I could hold the tears that were darting to my eyes. Then I put it down, taking a quick glance at Nell.

She was watching me, sympathy, bafflement on her face.

"What in the world could you have said in that telegram, Mary?" she asked. "Why, he looked as though you had thrown a bomb at him."

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

"I wish that I loved you, Jack," said Mary.

"Sylpho-Nathol is a sanitary safeguard"

When you think of all the conveniences of modern housekeeping, it makes you ... [illegible] ... had to contend with. How they would have appreciated the help of Sylpho-Nathol in keeping things sweet and beautifully clean.

"I often wonder what Grandmother would say if she could see the many ways in which I use Sylpho-Nathol around the house. ... her day, soap and elbow grease and untiring energy removed dirt and dust. But they had no effect on the germs which dirt and dust leave behind in floor cracks and crannies. Nor did they remove the unpleasant odors that persist so annoyingly in even the most scrupulously kept homes.

"Grandmother and even mother had to put up with these things ... modern housewives don't—that is, they don't have to if they use Sylpho-Nathol as I do."

Sylpho-Nathol was discovered by a prominent New England physician who realized the need for an effective household disinfectant and deodorant that would overcome the objections which women feel toward ordinary unpleasant smelling, hard-to-use preparations.

Sylpho-Nathol destroys germs. Though 3½ times stronger than carbolic acid, it's as safe to have around the house as a cake of soap. It cannot hurt your hands nor injure household things.

Sylpho-Nathol dispels odors. It quickly drives them away when poured down sink drains, or sprinkled in garbage cans; or used around bathroom fixtures and as a flush for the closet bowl, or sprinkled in damp, musty smelling corners. But its own faint, friendly smell doesn't linger.

Sylpho-Nathol is easy to use. A teaspoonful in a quart of warm water makes a clean-smelling, pearly gray mixture ... for immediate application.

Sylpho-Nathol comes in four handy sizes, 15c, 35c, 65c and $1.25. Most good grocers and druggists have it. If yours hasn't, he can get it easily. Just ask for it by the name—"Sylpho-Nathol."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

The Boston American will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment in My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Boston American.

One morning during the rush hour at Park street, my car was late and by the time it arrived a larger crowd than usual was gathered at the stop. I was the first one to enter the car and was practically pushed on by the impatient crowd and as I stepped on the first step, a man in back of me stepped on the heel of my slipper and pulled it off. It fell under the step of the car, and I was carried forward by the crowd as far as the fare box where I stopped and blocked the passage. I shall never forget the roar of laughter that greeted me and it seemed hours before a schoolboy made his way through the crowd to return my lost property.

Difficult to Keep Your Hair Wavy? Read This
See What Liquid Silmerine Will Do

If you have not yet tried the new way, the silmerine way, by all means do so, whether your hair be long or bobbed. You'll never again use the ruinous heated iron. The curliness will appear so perfectly natural and the hair will be so beautifully lustrous, instead of dried and parched. This liquid silmerine (Parker Belmont Co., Chicago) serves also as a beneficial dressing for the hair. It is neither sticky nor greasy, but quite pleasant to use. It should be applied with a clean tooth brush before putting up the hair, drawing the brush through the hair from root to tip.

The hair will have the prettiest curls and waves imaginable in three hours, and it will be easy to manage, no matter how you do it up. A few ounces of the liquid from your druggist will last a good time.

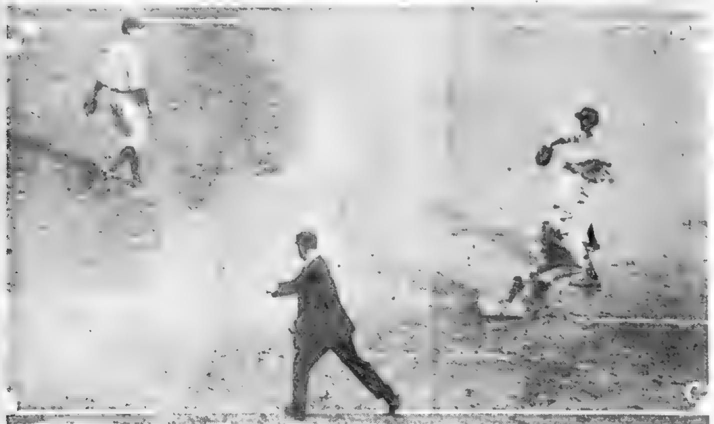
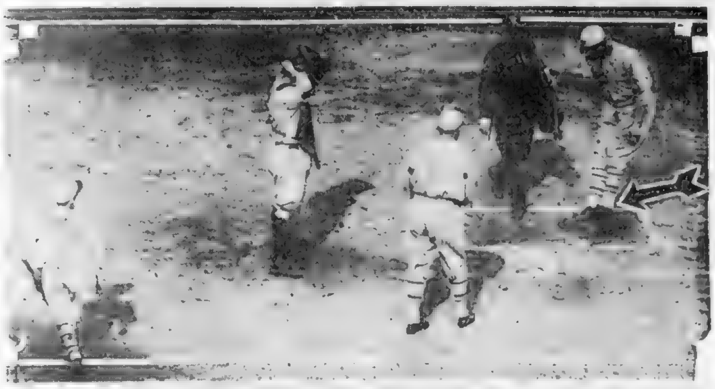
CREAM OF ACTION PICTURES IN SECOND GAME OF SERIES

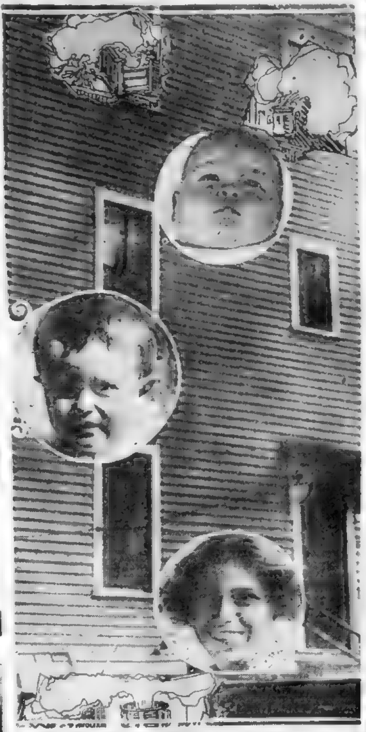


HE TRIED HARD BUT THE BALL BEAT HIM TO FIRST! BANCROFT, THE GIANTS' LIVELY SHORTstop, was the first man up in the game and the first to connect his willow with the ball. He lined one out into Ward's territory and the Yankees second sacker grabbed it and hurled it to first before the speeding Bancroft could make first. The photo shows the ball beating him to the first sack. Immediately after Groh singled to centre, and Frisch dropped a Texas leaguer back of short, Groh stopping at second. E. Meusel then hit a home run, scoring the two men ahead of him. (International News Reel.)



THE RUN THAT HELD THE GIANTS TO A TIE! IRISH MEUSEL, THE GIANTS' LEFT FIELDER, IS shown jumping on the home pan after sending in two runs ahead of him. This occurred in the first. Meusel cracked his homer into the left-field bleachers. Almost to a man, the big crowd at the game stood up. Groh, who singled to centre, and Frisch, who slammed out a Texas leaguer just back of E. Scott, were the two men sent in by Irish. After crossing the pan, as shown above, Young flied to Witt and Kelly fouled to Schang.

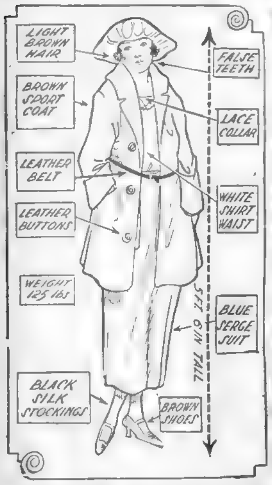
LATEST GASOLENE PUMP! PUMPS AND SCALES OF ALL DESCRIPtions are displayed at Faneuil Hall in connection with the annual convention of the Massachusetts Association of Sealers of Weights and Measures. Above, with the latest gasolene pumps, are shown Myrtle E. Lockhart, Marguerite E. Grayiere and Charles P. Murray, president of the association.



MILTON FIREBUG HUNTED! HOUSE AT NO. 12 Branch street, Milton, where four mysterious fires were found, three of which are indicated by sketches. Inserts also show three of the inmates imperilled. They are, at top, Baby John Gibbons; in centre, Virginia McDonald, and at bottom, Mrs. Margaret Stuart.

GOVERNOR'S DAY DRAWS More than 60,000 to Brockton Fair! Accompanying Governor and Mrs. Cox to the grounds was Mrs Calvin Coolidge, who had previously been entertained at luncheon by prominent Brockton folk. The quarter stretch with $40,000 in stakes up, the exhibits and the fun of the midway each contributed its share to the day's fun. The jumping events and horsemanship occupied a large share of attention. Above is shown the "Pride of Kildore" gracefully clearing a high hurdle

A SUIT TO Suit the Fair Smoker! Fashion designers have been forced by the popularity of smoking among women to create a special garment in which to woo Lady Nicotine. It is fashioned of dark blue satin, embroidered in multi colors silk (International News Reel)



DO YOU KNOW THIS WOMAN? THE identity of the woman whose description is given above and whose battered body was found floating near Salt Island, off Briar Neck, Gloucester, still remains a mystery. Local police have run down every available clew without success. The authorities have been unable to learn whether she was a suicide or murdered.

GIRL GROWS RECORD SUNFLOWER! Little Josephine Poole and her monster flower which she grew in the yard of her home at No. 42 Holly street, Annisquam. The stalk measures 10½ feet high and the flower 19½ inches across. The stalk is nine inches wide around the bottom and the largest leaf is 21 inches wide and 21 inches long.

JOE DUGAN MAKES SECOND AFTER A SENSATIONAL SLIDE! THE YANkees' third sacker made the second bag, as shown above, when Bancroft threw his grounder over Kelly's head in to first. When Ruth grounded out to Kelly, Dugan romped to the third plate. The latter scored when Pipp bounced a single off Kelly's chest. (International News Reel.)

Many New Tops Set in Irregular Market With Firm Undertone; Money Up to 5%

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

The police and fire departments of New York city stopped the issuing of tickets for the American Bankers' Association ball held last night. The demand was so overwhelming that, had the lid not been clamped down on the issuing of more tickets, serious trouble might have broken out.

Some five thousand managed to get hold of the coveted tickets, but ten thousand wanted to be there. No firemen's ball was ever more thronged.

Talking about banking, isn't this a curious fact? The two most profitable banks at the opposite seaboards of the country—one in New York, the other in San Francisco — are tremendously old-fashioned.

* * *

The oldest-fashioned bank in New York is the First National, headed by George F. Baker, now in his eighty-third year, but still fleet of foot and keen of mind. He went abroad for a jaunt this Summer, and the three younger men who accompanied him declared that they were glad to get home, for if they had stayed another month Mr. Baker would have had them run off their feet, he was so eternally on the go while abroad. The interior of Mr. Baker's bank has no spacious marble domes. It is exactly as it was a generation ago. The whole atmosphere breeds dignity and antiquity.

But the bank pays dividends of fifty per cent. a year!

* * *

Three and a half thousand miles across the continent is another bank which, the published statements show, has during the last half dozen years increased its surplus profits as much as all the other national banks in San Francisco combined.

The other is the Crocker National Bank.

It is, and almost from the start has been headed by William H. Crocker, of the well-known Crocker family of California. And curiously enough, Mr. Crocker is quite as old-fashioned in his banking ideas as is George F. Baker, notwithstanding that Mr. Crocker is a relatively young man—just turned sixty. Both, too, have attracted accounts more notable for their choiceness, their magnitude, than their number. The Baker bank has made a speciality of the accounts of big corporations. Mr. Crocker's bank has as clients a lot of wealthy, old families and industrials and corporations.

Mr. Crocker's conceptions of the banking business will astonish most people. I happen to know both Mr. Crocker and his views well.

"I still adhere to the old line of banking," said Mr. Crocker, who is now in New York, attending the A. B. A. convention. "I believe in preserving the old rules we followed thirty and forty years ago. They were sound. I believe in soundness. I believe in dignity, in the utmost dignity in conducting a bank. I don't believe in making a loud noise. I believe in conservatism. I am conservative to the last degree.

"After all, what is banking? It is caring for people's money and engaging in financial operations. I regard a client's relations with his bank as being as confidential as his relations with his doctor or his lawyer. The affairs of our clients are never mentioned. We know them and have confidence in them, and they know us and have confidence in us.

"If I had my preference our bank would be located down some quiet, secluded side street, just as you find the Rothschilds, the Coutts and other great banking houses in London and Paris located. Some of them haven't any sign on the building to tell what they are—perhaps a modest, a very modest name plate, nothing more.

"That's the kind of banking that appeals to me."

Verily, different men, different views.

PRINCE & WHITLEY—High-grade stocks a purchase on all recessions which are likely to be moderate for the immediate future, unless serious complications arise in foreign situation.

E. F. HUTTON & CO.—The market is going pretty fast, but it is evident that some of the best buying on the decline was not for quick and limited profits but for the pull.

HALLE & STIEGLITZ—Would use some care in following Standard Oils now and would prefer those which have not exceeded their previous highs this year.

JOSEPHTHAL & CO.—We would expect profit taking to develop soon but advise purchases on any recessions brought about in consequence.

THOMSON & McKINNON—Further sharp bulges are likely to attract profit taking, but the trend of values is upward.

RATE CUT HITS ATCHISON EARNINGS

August earnings of Atchison were worse than expected. Gross of $19,948,553, although $1,445,364 in excess of that for July, was $2,344,034 less than in the same month last year. Net operating income, $3,493,816, was $1,512,319 below July, 1922, and $4,895,580 less than August, 1921. Despite the fact that August gross decreased 11.3 per cent., compared with the same month last year, and net decreased 58.3 per cent., loadings in August were 162,753 cars, compared with 132,429 in August, 1921, an increase of 22.8 per cent.

This falling off in earnings in the face of heavier loadings is due, in part, to the rate reduction of July 1. The cut, however, accounts for only about half of the loss in gross. The tie-up of coast lines in August prevented much loaded freight from reaching its destination promptly. Revenues represent freight moved, not that wich is only loaded.

Atchison's revenue from grain traffic is merely deferred—not lost.

September loadings show continuance of traffic improvement. Coal, ore, grain and merchandise movements have yet to pass the peak.

ADAMS DIRECTORS DISCUSS DIVIDEND

Adams Express Company directors discussed resumption of dividends at regular monthly meeting and deferred action until November meeting. President Barrett repeated that the board intended to resume payment of dividends as soon as practicable. Whether to pay at a 5 per cent. or a 6per cent. rate has not been settled.

Trade Buying Jumps 7 Per Cent. in Past Week

Upturn in buying from wholesalers and manufacturers is reported this week by the Credit Clearing House in its weekly review of merchandising activity.

Buying is placed 7 per cent. ahead of last week for the country as a whole, 8 per cent. ahead of the same week a year ago and 3 per cent. more than two years ago.

Average was brought up by advances in buying in the middle and Southern agricultural sections, all other divisions showing losses ranging from 1 to 4.3 per cent.

Indebtedness increased .8 per cent. over last week and was 6.4 per cent. heavier than a year ago.

BOND MARKET HAS MIXED MOVEMENTS

Bond prices moved within narrow range in New York dealings. Movement in foreign issues was particulary confusing, Soissons 6s, Denmark 8s, series B, Marseilles 6s and Cuban government 5s of 1904 moving into higher ground, while Lyons 6s, Mexican 4s, Belgian 7s, Zurich 8s, Japanese 4s and Seine 7s were relatively backward. Liberty issues were steady.

Queries of interest to investors will be answered in this column or by mail. Address questions, with stamped and self-addressed envelope, to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

New England Oil Corporation—

T. H. M., Lachine, P. Q.—Rumors you have heard about New England Oil Corporation being in trouble are true. Federal Judge Mack last July appointed Gaspar G. Bacon temporary receiver and later Irvin McD. Garfield was named co-receiver. Verdict of over $1,000,000 was returned against this corporation in Virginia.

The receivership is in equity, not in bankruptcy, purpose being to preserve assets. The Virginia decision will be contested. I doubt if you get your dividends for many months. Future should be brighter for this concern, and I think you would be unwise to dispose of your holdings at bottom prices.

Telephone Bonds.

To A. R. D., Milton—American Telephone & Telegraph 4½ per cent. convertible bonds, 1933, are convertible into stock at any time up to March 1, 1925, at $120 a share. In other words, the holder of a $1,000 bond may secure ten shares of stock by paying $20 a share to the company. The convertible 6s, 1925, are convertible into stock at $106.

Complete retirement of these two bond issues through conversion into stock would reduce company's fixed charges coming ahead of dividends on stock, but would not represent actual saving in combined interest and dividend disbursements as long as dividend rate remains at 9 per cent.

There is another angle to the case. Conversion of bonds into stock relieves the company in this case of two fixed principal obligations, one of which would have to be met in 1925 and the other in 1933. We have no means of knowing what effect complete conversion of these bonds will have on the stock.

American Telephone & Telegraph Company, according to the last balance sheet, had $548,185,300 stock outstanding, a funded debt of $300,699,900 and a profit and loss surplus of $108,604,000. The net assets applicable to the stock amounted to $655,789,000, or $119.81 a share.

WHAT STOCKS TO BUY?
It is evident—from recent market action—that certain groups of stocks will sell materially higher before the end of the year.
Yet, at the same time much distribution is apparent in other sections of the market. Therefore, from now on, keen discrimination will be essential.

RECORD ORDERS FOR STEEL FOUNDRIES

President Lamont says American Steel Foundries Co. has larger unfilled orders than ever before, except two war years when plants were on special work. Earnings for year after all charges and taxes are expected to approximate $3,000,000.

Ratio of cost to prices is much more favorable than earlier in year, despite recent advance in wages.

Net earnings of $3,000,000 would cover preferred and common dividend requirements, slightly over $2,400,000, about one and one-quarter times and be equivalent to approximately $4 a share on the 612,030 shares of common outstanding. Junior issue $30⅛ par, and pays $3 a share annually.

Operations, which averaged only 50 per cent. in first quarter, were increased early in Summer to about 80 per cent. Rate for next six months will undoubtedly be as close to capacity as limited supply of labor will permit.

Recent 50 per cent. cash dividend of Griffin Wheel, a subsidiary, while involving transfer of over $4,000,000 cash to working capital account of parent company, leaves consolidated balance sheet unchanged.

Boston Notes

HORNBLOWER & WEEKS—Nothing suggests that the rally has spent its force except its duration. But at this precise date, bearing in mind the extremities of the advance, that factor is significant.

LOW-PRICED shares will bear speculators' watching for evidence of pool action, as many of the "cats and dogs" are bound to share in upswing with continuance of bull market.

MIAMI COPPER is expected to show a surplus after dividends for 1922, before depreciation and depletion. In August the company produced 6,383,000 pounds of copper, a new high monthly record.

FRAMINGHAM will receive proposals until 9 a. m., October 9, for discount of a temporary revenue loan of $50,000, maturing October 9, 1923.

BUTTE & SUPERIOR are coming from development work is more than paying development cost.

MAINE CENTRAL is expected to make up loss in any other direction by increase in coal traffic. This railroad is distributing heavy shipments coming to Portland by water.

GILLETTE SAFETY RAZOR, persistently around its record high, has been bought on the strength of increased earnings and dividend disbursements.

UNITED STATES WORSTED CO. has advanced men's wear worsteds 10 to 17½ cents a yard for Spring delivery.

LOEW'S, INC., directors' meeting has been postponed until October 11.

AMERICAN WOOLEN is still selling about 80 points under its book value, General Electric 40 and Endicott-Johnson 35.

AMERICAN ZINC has opened development program on its new silver-lead-copper property in Montana. It reports increasing profitable business.

KRESGE bonds' proposed redemption should aid the stock marketwise, as its position will be materially strengthened.

AMERICAN LINSEED is talked of here for rise on strength of alleged Standard Oil participation and benefits to accrue under new tariff.

REAL ESTATE HAPPENINGS

The Beacon Hill Realty Company has conveyed to David Gusenoff the four-story brick building and 1276 feet of land at No. 27 Anderson street and Nos. 34-38 Phillips street. The assessed valuation is $13,500, of which $6,100 is on the land.

The three-story brick building and 800 square feet of land at No. 29 Seneca street, near Albany street, has been sold by Etta Telpner to Caterina Borgia. It is assessed at $4,600, of which $3,000 is on the building.

LEXINGTON SALE.

Edward J. Remick of Arlington has purchased from George Harvey the latter's property on the south side of Farmcrest avenue, comprising 13,000 feet of land, with modern house and 2-car garage. Walter Channing was the broker.

DISMANTLING NAVAL CAMP.

The disposal of the property at what was the Hingham naval camp is proceeding rapidly. While there still remain a few buildings which would make excellent Summer cottages and four larger structures suitable for warehouses, movie theatres or dance halls, the majority of the buildings have been sold and removed to all parts of New England. Among the purchasers of more than one building were the Granite City Ice Co. of Quincy, who also bought the wharf; the Independent Ice Co. of Brockton, Purrington & Brigham, and the Columbia Disposal Co.

OPENS NEW OFFICES.

Charles J. Roche, the well known real estate operator, has opened a new suites of offices at 511-512A Penn Mutual Building, No. 24 Milk street.

Mr. Roche first entered the real estate business in 1912 when his office was located at No. 689 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge. For four years he specialized in the sale of Cambridge property. In 1916 he became associated with the Old Colony Realty Associates at No. 30 State street, Boston, where he operated in single and two-family suburban property, specializing in Brookline, Newton and Winchester property. During the war building operations were discontinued, but in 1921 Mr. Roche again began operating on a large scale. One of the first of his important transactions was the purchase from Paul Sears and Barton R. Felton of their holdings in thirty-nine three-family houses on Vernal, Dowse and Jones streets, Everett. Within six months, all of these homes had been resold to individual purchasers, no customer taking more than one house. This was considered one of the most remarkable feats in the history of the local real estate market. As a result Mr. Roche invested heavily in two and three-family dwellings in every Boston suburb and is now considered one of the largest operators in suburban properties in Greater Boston.

The new offices are attractively appointed and arranged for the convenience of Mr. Roche's many clients.

BACK BAY SALES.

Papers have been recorded in the sale by Robert T. and Henry Jackson to Nora E. White, of the three-story brick dwelling and 1,646 square feet of land at No. 33 Gloucester street. The assessed valuation is $16,200. William C. Codman & Son were the brokers.

About 1,000 Newspaper Men

They Represent Disappointment—and Other Things

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Gene Fowler, a first-class newspaper worker and editor of "The Club Reporter," published by the Newspaper Club of New York city, wants an editorial for his paper.

Said he: "We have more than 1,000 members in our club. They are our only subscribers. Please write an editorial about "one thousand newspaper men."

A thousand newspaper men represent, among other things, disappointment in life. Newspaper work is hard, and it does not get better as you grow older, unless you are among the few very fortunate.

Men in other professions, as they work through the years, build up a firm name professionally or in business they build up a business name. And at the end of years they have created something that GOES ON earning for them when they are old.

Not so with the newspaper man.

He must do every day the work by which he lives, and do it all over again.

Each day he must create his reputation anew.

His greatest asset is ENTHUSIASM, real interest in what he sees and what he tells.

And the years are the enemies of enthusiasm.

A thousand newspapermen, however, represent something more important than several hundred kinds of disappointment. They are to our civilization what the bulb in the electric lamp is to the big factory grinding out electricity down by the waterfront. The light in the bulb tells what the factory is doing. The reporter in the newspaper tells what civilization is doing, as it works, builds, tears down, cheats, lies, deceives and SLOWLY GOES AHEAD.

The electric bulb BURNS OUT, so does the newspaper man. He at least has made it possible for humanity to see more clearly and to advance with knowledge. That means satisfaction.

Newspaper work brings disillusion. After a few years a man starting out full of enthusiasm knows too much about human beings. He must begin with a great supply of hope and optimism, and with a good deal of knowledge of the past and of progress in the past to avoid pessimism and gloom.

Young reporters learn that the word of great men is often unreliable. One of the best known statesmen and heroes of this country always had two reporters sent to see him by the Associated Press, that one might corroborate the other and discourage denial of what the hero had actually said.

Reporters in the very beginning learn the pitiful craving for notoriety, eagerness for publicity that obsesses their fellow citizens and that diminishes their opinion of them.

Reporters learn quite young that politics and the government of this nation are managed to a great extent by the intellectual dregs of the population. They discover that the first step toward public approval is a step down, and that discourages them.

However, newspaper work is an education. It enlightens the reporter as the reporter enlightens his fellow citizens. If he can stay out of the rut, which is extremely difficult and unusual, or if he can stay in long enough to get the information he wants, then get out and try something else, the reporter usually can thank his newspaper experience.

If he stays too long and is not exceptionally fortunate, time and the current of news running through him burn him out, as the electric current burns out the bulb, and like that bulb he goes into the scrap heap.

This is written after thirty-nine years of reporting and other newspaper work, and therefore with some slight authority.

Without the work of good reporters our government, our grafters, our hypocrites, big and little, our crooks in politics, and our politics in crime would be a thousand times worse than they are. Let that repay the 1,000 newspaper men.

Let Superior Officers Act

Policeman Accused of Attacking Boston American Office Boy Condemned by Court—Boy Is Freed

Recently a Boston American messenger boy was on his way to deliver copy when he became mingled in a crowd which was watching the arrest of a drunken would-be orator. He claims that a few moments afterwards a new officer entered the situation and ordered the crowd back, striking without reason the Boston American's messenger boy and later arresting him on the charge of attempting to free a prisoner.

The story which the officer told and the story which the boy told were so conflicting and irreconcilable that the Boston American decided to find some other witnesses to the affair. We therefore published the facts so far as we have already stated them and declaring that we wished to stand by our boy if he was right and to stand by the officer if he was right. So we asked the spectators who might read the editorial to send their names and addresses to us. Quite a number put duty above convenience and sent us their names and addresses. On interviewing these spectators we found that they corroborated our boy and not the officer, so we defended the boy in court, and the court acquitted him and thus condemned the conduct of the officer.

Now what should be done to the officer we do not know. We are not in the business of disciplining the police force. We are entirely willing that the matter should be attended to by their officers' superiors. We are contented to call the attention of the superiors to the incident and let it rest there. It is not necessary to assure the police force that the Boston American is not a captious or a hostile critic. They know that this newspaper has defended the police force against a great many unjust attacks and has always taken the position that the severest punishment must be given those citizens who resist an officer or to those who assault an officer. But the most friendly kind of criticism is that which helps to weed out or to chasten the hot-headed or mean-minded officer.

Should She Work?

Editor Boston American:

I am a woman of twenty-five and have been married three years. I have one daughter. Now that the family is increased my husband's pay is not sufficient to support us in what I consider comfortable circumstances. Should I go to work? I was an expert stenographer and could earn good money. It is not independence I want, but more comforts in the home. My husband does not want me to, and I myself feel that I might be taking a job from some needy single woman. Who can help me in my quandary? MRS. U. W. L.

Subway Courtesy

Editor Boston American:

As I received change for a half-dollar at a booth in the Park street subway the other day, the woman inside changed the sign over the window from "Open" to "Closed." The sign in turning over struck me on the head. I was not hurt, but a dime was knocked to the ground from my hand. In my confusion I did not notice it, and held out my hand to show the woman that I was ten cents short. "Move along," she said. "If you want your dime, you will find it on the floor!" Courtesy! What?

Old Newspapers

Editor Boston American:

Having read in the Seen and Heard Column about a paper printed April 15, 1865, on view in a Charlestown store window, I thought you might be interested to know that I have a copy of the New York Herald of the same date (April 15, 1865), the first page also being devoted to the assassination of President Lincoln, and I have another paper, Ulster County Gazette, printed at Kingston, Ulster County, N. Y., Saturday, January 4, 1800, giving an account of the death of Washington. D. F. C.

Political Prisoners

Editor Boston American:

Since much of the hatred that our countrymen felt for Germany and the Kaiser, William, has died out, why should the political prisoners be kept in prison. I am afraid that the "old" Kaiser, as he has oftentimes been called, is not the only man who has shown a cold and unforgiving spirit. These men are not murderers nor thieves, but most of them, and perhaps all, have as big and as true hearts as ever beat in the breast of any man. Will the government be doing duty to these fathers and husbands who are sorely needed at home? Are these men the only ones who are suffering and being punished? What about the children and mothers who are longing each day to receive news, glad news, from these men who most of us believe have been sufficiently punished for the mistake that they made—many months ago—but years it must have seemed to them? More Such Women

Editor Boston American:

I would say, Miss L. E. V., youre is not a small personal problem. We want more such women as you to be the mothers of our boys. Permit me to say you talk like an American queen and I have not the least doubt but you have picked an American prince. Don't look into the future with only gold in the eye. Remember there's one thing much greater, contentment. How many who live in grand mansions glittering with gold lack contentment. I feel full sure one dollar living happy together will go farther than ten. Your fiance is correct, for too many of our young women are foolishly independent. Once you look your little one in the face and it reflects your own likeness, I'll say such as you are capable of moving mountains, so go to it for the love of your dear country and may God bless you. A FRIEND.

Proud of Button

Editor Boston American:

I wonder how any one can be so bigoted to object to any one wearing an emblem which plainly reads, "For Service at the Front," even though it has the Union Jack in the centre? There were 107,000 Americans as good as "Unhyphenated American" in the Canadian army who got there early to "make the world safe for democracy" and history shows that the Canadian army has a splendid record "over there." I am from Greater Boston and just as good an American as the writer of said article, spent the biggest part of four years in the Canadian army, twenty-seven months' actual service at the front and have been wounded three times, and am only one of the many Americans who are proud to wear a service emblem earned in the last war, whether it has the English, French, Italian or any other flag of a country who was our ally. Another fact about the button is that the wearer did not have to fight for his bonus.

HENRY MORRISON.
Machinist's Mate, 1st Class, U. S. Navy.

Stars and Stripes Only

Editor Boston American:

In answer to the individual signing self H. M. W., Hudson, I would say the slur to Americans is given by the wearers of this "wonderful button," with the Union Jack of England engraved on it. The Americans saved this emblem of tyranny from utter defeat and yet these fellows have the audacity to wear it in our streets. I work with Canadians and they have no use for this Republic, only for the good living they can make here. I again say to my fellow American citizens, that no emblem, however "wonderful," should be allowed to be paraded day after day in our streets, before our eyes, except the Stars and Stripes.

AN UNHYPHENATED AMERICAN.

Canadian Button

Editor Boston American:

"Unhyphenated American" doesn't seem to understand the meaning of the little bronze button, with a Union Jack, encircled by the words, "For Service at the Front," worn by thousands of ex-service men in the United States. Does "Unhyphenated American" (whatever that means) fear that the wearing of such an honorable decoration makes the wearer a less desirable citizen? Like thousands of others in the United States I am no less proud of my American birth and citizenship than I am of the honor I had of fighting with the Canadian boys.

We joined the Canadian army because we realized long before our "watchful waiting administration" that it was America's fight, and we felt ashamed of our country's delay until her bankers and other capitalists could corner the gold of the world.

Will Get His Crutches

Editor Boston American:

I know a young fellow who is badly crippled and in need of crutches. Would like to know if Mrs. A. J. R. still has the pair which measures 45 inches. If so, I know this young man would appreciate them very much as he is very poor and out of work.

MRS. F. A. H.

ED NOTE—The address of Mrs. A. J. R. who offered the 45-inch crutches has been sent to Mrs. F. A. H.

If This Is Your Birthday

You Are LUCKY

YOU are extremely emotional if born today, and rather inclined to overdo everything you attempt. You are impulsive, erratic, and you can never rely on yourself any more than others can rely on you, because your mind is so clear in its perceptions that any problem you experience becomes momentarily of great importance. You see it in all its complicated relations to other things and you feel that you personally must do something to solve it.

Today is one of auspicious outlook for general business, and of particularly splendid prospect for all chemical industries.

The next year of your life will be one of restful quiet and meditation—a year in which you will develop spiritually and philosophically in order to face the future.

A child born today will be forceful and magnetic and will always have the happy faculty of securing the loyalty and services of others.

IS YOUR DRAMATIC SENSE PERVERTED?

It is a rather good thing to have a keen dramatic sense if it causes you to realize that whatever you do, you must play your part well while you are on earth.

In fact there are some persons who help themselves over hard places in life, just through their ability to look at the troubles of the day as from the outside, and to dictate to themselves the right sort of action.

But when the dramatic sense leads a person to play up everything for its effect on someone else, then the dramatic sense is perverted.

If your first thought is, what would the crowd say if I shall do so and so? you are bordering on a dangerous kind of dramatics.

If you want applause at any cost, you are not really true and sincere.

Real, not assumed, sincerity is the greatest charm a person can possess.

Just let it be suspected once that you are acting a part, and are not truly what you pretend by your fair words or your acts, and you have lost your greatest asset, whether in business or society.

SEEN AND HEARD

THE most famous herd of Guernsey cows in the country is on the MIXTER estate in Hardwick. It numbers 850. Such careful care is shown in breeding that not a communicable disease has been found in the herd in twenty years.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL ALLEN kept in shape during the Tufts and Pelletier case by playing tennis daily. He recently got a charley horse, so he now chops wood an hour every morning before leaving his home for the office.

SENATOR DAVID I. WALSH is both a genial and witty presiding officer. At the Democratic State Convention he introduced COLONEL GASTON as "the next junior Senator from Massachusetts."

While JERRY WATSON was scanning Webster's Dictionary for British propaganda he encountered the word "zarf." Imagine his surprise when he read the definitions "A metallic cup-like stand for a finjan"! He is waiting to get over his start before he looks up the meaning of finjan.

Persons accustomed to seeing wild crows in the country districts would be surprised to see how tame these birds become in a big city, where they seem to understand they have no gunnery to fear. Just at this time a flock of them can be seen almost any time in the vicinity of Norfolk Hall, Dorchester. They mingle with the pigeons in friendly fashion and sun themselves unconcernedly on the roof of the big hall.

DEPUTY PARK COMMISSIONER WILLIAM P. LONG is back on the job at his Beacon Hill office somewhat crippled. The D. P. C. slipped on the concrete in his garage recently and is sporting a nice new pair of crutches.

The new concrete bleachers on the old Town Field, Dorchester, are at last visible to the naked eye, and the finished section resembles a small corner of the Harvard Stadium. It is a fine monument to the ceaseless efforts of COUNCILLOR GILBODY.

ERNEST H. WILSON, assistant director of the Arnold Arboretum, who has just returned from a world tour in the interests of the great Forest Hills institution, is in time to pluck one of the many fruits of his labors in far away Thibet. It was there that Mr. Wilson found and brought to Boston the first stoneless peach ever known to the civilized world.

SAM SMITH, who referees most of the big wrestling bouts in this section, was an instructor in this art during the war. He was a color sergeant in the 3rd Pioneer Infantry (old 5th Mass.) and while in the South taught army officers half Nelsons, etc.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON FULLNESS OF LIFE

By Garrett P. Serviss

EVERY healthy human being wishes to, and ought to, make the most possible of his life. It is his duty and will certainly, if he obeys that duty, be his pleasure, to fill his life full to its capacity. But this can never be done by idleness of mind or body or both. Nothing pays but discipline. The listless joys of idle hours are too soft. They have no gemlike quality. They give no lasting satisfaction. Only by his work a man attains his highest excellence.

Work does not mean simply the occupation by which one earns his living. It signifies equally any exercise of his powers by means of which he learns more about himself and the things around him. I call it work to watch intelligently and experiment ingeniously with the phenomena of nature, seeking both to understand them better and to appreciate to the full all the beauty and marvelousness that they contain.

Both that kind of work and the kind that directly earns daily bread, by tiring, monotonous, continuance of muscular and nervous effort, contribute together and alike to the filling out of one's life.

What is it to fill out your life? It is simply to develop yourself on every side; to make of yourself as complete a human creature as you can; to get away as far as possible from mere animality. You will hear people praise the "idyllic" life of the South Sea islands. There nature, they say, is so kind a nurse, or so indulgent a mother, that men and women have only to stretch forth their hands in order to have, with no effort, the wherewithal to live; there they need not clothe themselves; there forests and groves form houses not made with hands; there there is no need to cultivate the ground; there all may lie or stroll all day and every day in golden sunshine, or in the cooling shadows of white, wind-driven clouds, or of green branches stirred by fragrant zephyrs; there, in one sentence, men and women may have the freedom, the irresponsibility, the thoughtlessness, the carelessness, the ignorance, the irrationality of the beasts of the field, throwing away, or utterly disregarding all the nobility of human nature, the only thing that enables man to differentiate himself from the other animals.

And this sort of life is held up for us to admire, and we are told that our civilization is a failure because it has drifted away from this delightful "simple freedom" into the "slavery" of the working world. But work is not slavery, if men understand it right. Modern civilization is not a failure merely because injustice, inequity, predatory greed, oppression of the weak, heartlessness, selfishness and other crimes and outrages flourish under it like weeds in a rich soil.

The person who develops himself, or herself, to the utmost becomes a kind of human star, or sun, radiating from an almost exhaustless store, energies that tend to kindle similar fires in hundreds of thousands of others. We have all felt the influence of persons possessing this fullness. They are springs or reservoirs of force, because they have, during all their life, kept their minds open to the inflow of the suggestions and influences of nature, without being mere conduits, but always digesting, interpreting and giving new force to what they have received.

—Medbury Says—

A Dame Doesn't Care How Much You Walk Her in a Dance if There's a Taxi at the End

Fast and jazzy dancing has gone and slow dancing has taken its place. But the way some couples creep over the dance floor you'd think they'd be arrested for vagrancy.

One up-to-date cafe put a revolving floor in their restaurant to save the dancers the trouble of doing any walking at all. A guy gets up on the dance floor with his girl. She put her head on his shoulder and the next thing he knows she's asleep.

The men are just as bad as the girls and the way some of these he-flappers look it's hard to tell when they're unconscious.

You don't know whether to wake them up or bury them. Some of the dance halls have had to put up "no loafing" signs on their floors.

A dame doesn't care how much you walk her around on a dance floor as long as you take her home in a taxi.

No matter how soundly she sleeps on the dance floor you can always wake her up by telling her you're going to take her home on the street car.

But it's a pleasure to take them to a dance, because most of them can walk in their sleep.

It's getting so now that when you see a couple awake on the dance floor you know they're suffering from insomnia.

It isn't their fault that they go to sleep on the dance floor.

The business districts of most towns are getting so noisy that a person can't sleep at the office any more.

Of course everybody has a home, but a lot of us sleep there by proxy.

The styles of dancing have changed, but so have the orchestras. Instead of playing wide awake selections they play "Rock-a-bye," and "Sleep, Baby Sleep."

The orchestras are getting so lazy that they only play pieces which have a lot of "rests" in them. And most of them choose dance selections which are composed of half notes.

The dancers and the orchestra have a lot of fun with each other. They each try to see which can get to sleep first.

If this style of dancing continues, the men will have to sell their watches and carry alarm clocks.

JOHN P. MEDBURY.
